The Ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment Rescinded—Discussion in the Senate and Assembly on the Resolution.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Wednesday, Jan. 5, 1870.

TWEED's resolution to rescind the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment was called up at the opening of the Senate this morning, immediately after the reading of the journal. Senator WOODIN, of Cayuga, opened the discussion in a very able legal argument on the right of the present Legislature to rescind the action of a previous Legislature on this subject. He said the question was a novel one, and although two or three States had attempted to take such action, yet there had been but little discussion of the question compared with its importance. Prominent Democratic Senators in Congress had scarcely ventured to express an opinion in favor of the right of a State to do such a thing, and he construed their silence as an admission that the right could not be maintained by argument. It seemed, however, that the majority in the present Legislature of this State was determined to exercise the right, and the minority could only enter their earnest protest against it. The power of a State to take any part whatever in amending the Constitution of the United States was only derived from Congress. A State can neither propose an amendment nor dictate its terms. Its action in the premises was not in the nature of a legislative enactment. The ratification of an amendment is not submitted to the Legislature because it is a law-making body. If its action was an enactment there might be power to rescind or abolish it, but when a State once assents to the amendment its power over the subject ceases. Suppose the amendment had been submitted to a convention instead of to the Legislature, as it might have been, could the convention, after having ratified it and adjourned sine die, reassemble and take reverse action on the subject? If not, then how could the Legislature do it? The Constitution of the United States gives to a State Legislature the same power over the subject as it gives to a convention, and no more. Because a Legislature may rescind adverse action on an amendment, it by no means follows that it can rescind affirmative action. Adverse action is simply a nullity; it is no action at all, and leaves the question open for future action. Again, when a State has once ratified an amendment, it is not alone interested in that action; it then becomes the common property of all the States, and cannot be recalled without their consent. No power having, therefore, been conferred upon the present Legislature to do this thing, the exercise of such a power would be no more nor less than usurpation. It was in the same spirit as the action of so large a portion of the Democratic Party when rebellion reared its head in the country, and they justified and encouraged it. He well knew that there was no power in the Republican side of the Senate to prevent the adoption of this resolution, but he desired for one to enter his protest against an act so much akin to secession.

Senator MURPHY, of Kings, repelled the insinuation that the Democratic Party of New-York had any sympathies with secession. They stood now, as ever, for the Union and the Constitution. Had the ratification of this amendment been made in a regular manner by the last Legislature, the subject might not have been brought here to-day. But it was not, in his opinion, done in conformity with the terms of the Constitution and laws. Heretofore all amendments to the Constitution of the United States had been ratified by bill. In this case it was done by resolution. Again, the resolution had never been transmitted to Congress or to the General Goverment in a regular way. At the request of an officer of the General Government a certified copy of the resolution was sent to the Secretary of State, but it has never been sent there in the regular way to show what the action of the State was. He maintained that until a majority of States had given their assent to the ratification, the question was sub judice, and not, as Senator WOODIN had claimed, functus officio. He denied that other States acquired any rights from the favorable or adverse action of one State. It was not with a desire to perpetuate the negro agitation that the Democratic Party of this State opposed the ratification of this amendment, but because of the clause in the amendment giving Congress power over suffrage in the different States. He, for one, should resist all attempts to place New-York, in the matter of suffrage, at the feet of Congress. Mr. MURPHY closed by repeating the silly apprehension, first invented by PETER B. SWEENY, that if this amendment was adopted Congress would send inspectors and canvassers of election, and perhaps a military power, into the State of New-York to control elections here in the interest of the Republican Party.

Senator PARKER, of St. Lawrence, said that he was greatly surprised that this question had been forced upon the Senate at such an early period of the session. He supposed there were other questions deemed of more importance by his Democratic friends. They had announced to their followers, with great flourish of trumpets, that they were coming to Albany to enact laws granting to the people free drinking, work days and Sundays; free voting, and all other sorts of freedom; but lo and behold! on their arrival here the first thing they do is to open their batteries, their tomahawks and their scalping knives upon the poor defenceless negro. And yet this was not so strange after all, for the Democratic Party had been built up by the exercise of power over that servile race. Mr. PARKER then exposed the ridiculous absurdity of the proposition that this subject of ratifying an amendment to the Constitution of the United States could be kicked to and fro like a football between the Legislatures of the States and Congress—ratifying one year and rescinding the next. As to the form of the ratification, the law did not specify whether it should be done by bill or by resolution. If it was done by a bill, it should receive the signature of the Governor, but the Constitution says nothing about the Governor in connection with the ratification; he was entirely ignored on the matter, and his signature or consent was not needed and would not be proper. Neither was there anything said as to how the rescission should be communicated to Congress, or whether it should be sent there at all. The record of the action of the last Legislature on the subject exists in the office of the Secretary of State of New-York, and that is sufficient. As to the Senator's pretended fear that Congress will send inspectors of election and a Military Governor into this State to control elections, it was simply ridiculous, and needed no reply. Congress certainly had the power, and it was its duty to enforce by proper legislation any and all amendments to the Constitution, and the last clause of the amendment now under consideration was simply designed to effect that end. In conclusion, he said he had hoped that we had passed the old contest over the negro, and that the Democratic Party had got over the frenzy that had so long been accustomed to attack them whenever the name of the negro was mentioned. But it seemed not, and he could only enter his protest against a proceeding that he well knew was resolved on by those who now held the power in the Legislature.

Senator CREAMER spoke in favor of the resolution, and at the conclusion of his remarks the vote was taken, and the ratification rescinded by ayes 16, nays 12—a strict party vote. It was immediately sent down to the Assembly, when after being discussed by Messrs. HUSTED, ALVORD, WHITE, LITTLEJOHN, MADDOX and others on the Republican side, and by Messrs. MURPHY of Albany, JACOBS, PATRICK of Chemung, and other Democrats, the resolution was also carried by a party vote. Ayes 69, nays 56—Mr. PEASE, of Lewis County, alone among the Democrats voting in the negative.

Quite a number of bills were introduced in both Houses, including one for the abolition of the Police Commission of New-York, another to abolish the Excise law, two or three to abolish the Conspiracy law, &c., &c. The great feature of to-day's proceedings, however, was the rescinding of the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment—the first step in the programme of the great PETER B. SWEENY, who is to guide the helm of State during the present session.

Both Houses have passed resolutions to adjourn from to-morrow till Tuesday morning next.

The Committee on revision of the rules of the Assembly reported in favor of increasing the number of members of the Standing Committees—those heretofore having seven members to be increased to nine, those having five to seven. This is done to enable the Democracy to fulfill their promises incurred in the contest for Speaker. S.

For the purpose of constructing the road the Company may take a space of twenty-five feet in width along the proposed route. Two years are granted the Company for the completion of the road to the Hudson River Railroad.

Mr. ALVORD introduced a motion that the Canal Board be instructed to reduce all tolls on mineral coal going West; also requesting our Representatives in Congress to vote for the repeal of all duties on mineral coal. A motion to lay the motion on the table was lost.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN moved the appointment of a committee of five on this subject and all other subjects of a like nature, to report on the 20th inst. Agreed to. The following were appointed such committee: Littlejohn, Jacobs, Kornan, Murphy and Alvord.

Mr. MITCHELL called up his resolution requesting our Representatives in Congress to use their earnest efforts for the repeal of all duties on tea, coffee, sugar and coal, and it was referred to the Committee already ordered.

POLITICAL EMOTION.

Mr. WHITE offered a resolution in sympathy with all people struggling for independence; condemning the action of the Government in the matter of the Spanish outbreak, and indorsing Senator CARPENTER's resolution on the same subject. Tabled and ordered to be printed.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Governor's Message, but immediately rose and reported progress.

Recess until 8:30 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

THE FIFTEENTH AMENDMENT.

The House reassembled at 2 o'clock. The concurrent resolutions of the Senate to repeal the resolution adopting the Fifteenth Amendment was received from the Senate, and the Speaker announced the question to be on concurring with the Senate.

Mr. HUSTED rose and protested against this action. He cited the United States Constitution, reading therefrom to prove that this Legislature could not take such action on this subject. The action of the last Legislature was not the passage of a law of this State subject to repeal at any time. It was the adoption of a resolution submitted to a particular Legislature by Congress, and when that Legislature discharged that duty and went out of existence, the whole matter was ended. He then referred to the moral phase of the question, and declared that the Democratic Party would gain nothing, but lose much by its action to-day.

Mr. ALVORD followed, arguing that the power to act on this matter had departed forever from this State. He also protested against the passage of the resolution. He protested against taking up the time of the House with such a fruitless and frivolous proposition, and said that if the resolutions were adopted the action will amount to nothing.

Mr. MURPHY, of Albany, contended that the action last year was incomplete, therefore further action was not only entirely proper but actually necessary.

Mr. PATRICK spoke in favor of the resolutions, when Mr. LYONS moved the previous question, which was ordered.

Mr. ALVORD insisted that the work was complete last year. The mere failure to transmit the resolution to Washington amounted to nothing.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN insisted the action proposed here would amount to nothing. New-York has discharged her duty in this matter by her action last Winter, and had nothing more to do. The Constitution of the United States provides for States ratifying amendments to it, but not for rescinding their ratifications. He then proceeded to defend the justice of the Fifteenth Amendment, and spoke at length in advocacy of it as a Democratic measure.

Mr. MURPHY, of Albany, claimed that this amendment was submitted to the people at the last election, and the result was the sending of a large majority of Democrats here to repeal the action taken by the last Legislature. He also said it was necessary to pass this resolution to-day in order to prevent certain action by Congress which would be taken on the 15th inst., and which would render null and void any subsequent action by this Legislature.

Mr. JACOBS said he saw only a plain duty to perform here in this matter. The majority of this House was elected to revoke this ratification, and it was our duty to place on record that vote to-day. The people of this State expect this of us; they want placed on the records of the State and the nation their dissent from ratifying this amendment.

The hour agreed upon for discussion having passed, Mr. HUSTED moved the previous question, which was ordered, and the resolutions adopted as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Ainsworth, Alabon, Baldwin, Bentley, Barker, Barnes, Bennett, Bergen, Blair, J. Brown, Burns, Campbell, Carey, Cavanagh, Clark, Cook, Coon, Cullen, J. Davis, Dodge, Doull, Empie, Flagg, Fleming, Fullerton, Gaffney, Gallagher, Gibbs, Hathaway, Hayes, Hennessy, Horton, Howe, Irving, Jacobs, Jerard, Jones, Kornan, Krack, LaMorse, Lanahan, Lawrence, Loew, Martine, Mitchell, Morgan, O. Moore, C. L. Morris, Murphy, O. Murphy, W. D. Murphy, Nachmann, Nolack, O'Keefe, Patrick, Payne, Pentnell, Plunkit, Ransom, Roman, Shanahan, Sleight, Snow, Speaker, Stein, Stevens, Sullivan, Taylor, Terwilliger, Thorn—64.

NAYS—Messrs. Alvord, Baker, Banks, Berry, Bleecker, Bolt, Bradford, S. L. Brown, V. S. Brown, Butterfield, J. D. Davis, Delano, Deming, Dimick, Dwight, Eldridge, Fleischmann, C. Fleischmann, Graham, Gleason, Green, Hall, Hewitt, Hull, Husted, Hyde, Johnson, Kilham, Littlejohn, Lowery, Maddox, Merchant, Miner, Mulford, Northup, Ostrom, Palmer, Parker, Parsons, Pierson, Roberts, Rathbone, Seward, Sutter, Stephenson, Tefft, Walker, West, White, Wilson, Winan, Wood, Wright—38.

The Senate resolution to adjourn from to-morrow till Tuesday next was concurred in.

The Assembly adjourned.

THE TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE.

Present Phase of the Difficulty—Both Sides of the Case as Presented by the Company and by the Operators.

A special meeting of the members of the Telegraphers' Protective League, was convened at No. 770 Grand-street, yesterday evening. Mr. HUTCHINSON presided, and stated that a misapprehension seemed to exist with respect to the object of the strike. An impression prevailed that the end they aimed to obtain was an increase in their salaries, and under that misconception a good deal of unfriendliness had been evinced towards the movement by the general public. He explained that the strike originated in an attempt made by the Superintendents of the San Francisco and Sacramento branches of the Western Union Telegraph Company to reduce the salaries of their operators. The latter very properly refused to submit to the reduction, and the Superintendent, in communicating the matter to the officers of the League, a general strike throughout all the States of the Union was the result. He had received dispatches from all the principal cities in the States informing him that nearly all of the operators left, and already 3,000 were on the strike. He mentioned that he had communicated with the Company on Tuesday and fairly represented the justice of their demand, but no concession would be made them; their overtures were contemptuously rejected, and they were summarily dismissed. The only terms they demanded were, that their brother operators in San Francisco and Sacramento should be reinstated; they wanted nothing more, and they would be satisfied with nothing less.

Telegraphic dispatches from Washington, Portland, Albany, Detroit, Chicago, Texas, &c., favoring the movement arrived during the meeting, and it was received with much cheering.

A member urged the continuance of the strike, as it would show Congress, which meets on the 10th of January, the further necessity of their interference in directing the telegraph lines. That should be their great aim, for, under Government management, their salaries would not be reduced, as now, with the ordinary fluctuations of business.

A committee was appointed to confer with the Printing Operators' Company and request their cooperation and support.

The meeting, which was numerously attended, then adjourned, each expressing confidence in the final result of the strike.

The two remaining female operators at the New-York office have struck, so that all sixteen are now out. All the principal offices from New-York to San Francisco, and from Buffalo to Texas, are now on the strike. From all points there are being ordered here to fill the places of the strikers, but on refusing to do so are at once discharged. Several men on the Canada side, who refused to come over and take the places of the strikers, shared the same fate. Yesterday the news arrived that the female operators at Chicago—their chief operator at their head—struck in a body. A dispatch from Pittsburg yesterday, stated that the railroad operators were leaving in but were at once received by a "vigilance committee" of the League, sworn in and then sent home again.

The printing operators are afraid to join the strikers because they fear that, as a consequence, their system of telegraphing will be abolished.

The following communications from the Company and from the operators fully set forth both sides of the question:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY,
NEW-YORK, Jan. 5, 1870.

To the Public:

The interruption of the business of this Company by a strike among its operators is a matter of such general interest to the people of all sections as to call for an explanation on the part of its executive officers. The first intimation of difficulty reached this office Monday morning, when persons styling themselves "A Committee of the Telegraphers' Protective League," called to acquaint us that certain operators in San Francisco, members of their organization, had been discharged because they would not submit to a reduction of salary, and demanded that these men should be restored to their former places and pay. They were told that the Company had no knowledge of any reduction of salaries at San Francisco or elsewhere, but that inquiry into the facts would be made of the manager at San Francisco. The reply of Mr. MUNFORD to this inquiry stated that he had discharged two men at San Francisco for trying to create dissatisfaction in the office, and because the operating force at that point was larger than was needed, but that no reduction of salaries had been made or contemplated, the only changes having been by way of increase. This reply was communicated to the operators' Committee, who had meanwhile presented to the officers of the Company a copy of resolutions purporting to have been adopted by the so-called League, demanding the restoration of the men in question, and threatening a suspension of work on the part of its members if the demand was not complied with. Not satisfied with the explicit denial by the Company of the facts upon which their action had been based, the operators in a second letter demanded of the Company a pledge to restore such operators at San Francisco, if any, as had been dismissed for resisting a reduction of salary, and also to reinstate their former places and pay the operators who had left the Company's service in several of the Western cities at the call of their disaffected friends in California. With neither of these demands could the Company comply. It would have been a gratuitous insult to a national officer to send him instructions based upon a state of facts of which we had denied the existence, while, on the other hand, the executive officers could not stipulate in advance to restore to their places and pay persons who had left their employ without a shadow of reason, and in a manner and for the purpose of embarrassing the Company in business, (as was avowed in the resolution adopted at the operators' meeting,) and whose places had probably been supplied by new engagements. Such a pledge would have interfered injuriously with the functions of Division and District Superintendents, and would have involved the violation of our contracts with innocent parties.

With this the correspondence ended, and the strike followed, both in the and in other principal cities. The officers of the Company deeply regret the inconvenience which this movement will occasion, and the suffering, not to speak of the injury which it will cause to all parties and interests affected by it. The action of the operators has been caused upon a mistake, and they have permitted themselves to be imposed upon by unscrupulous men who had no real grievance to complain of. In spite of the very large reduction in tolls which have been made by the Western Union Company within the last three months, no reduction in the pay of its employees has been made or contemplated. The course pursued by the operators is, therefore, unnecessary as it is unjust. The Company can only account for such action on the part of an intelligent body of men, and many of whom have been for years in its service under the most cordial relations, by the fact that they seem to have surrendered their individual liberty and the right of private judgment, which is the American birthright so highly, so incomparably valued, to the dictates of an irresponsible body. Of the existence and purposes of the Telegrapher's Protective League, the officers of this Company had no knowledge previous to the present disturbance. They are now informed that its members bind themselves by a sacred oath to obey the orders of its officers. Such an order appears in the journals of this morning over the signatures of three persons, the chief of whom is the City manager of another Telegraph Company. Thus it appears that the employes of the Western Union Company, joining an organization thus officered, have put themselves in the situation of an army, which by solemn and sacred sanctions, should bind itself to lay down its arms and surrender its cause at the bidding of and upon the signal of the commander of the enemy's forces.

But the cause cannot be thus surrendered. Fortunately for all concerned, enough loyal men remain to command the situation and to serve as a nucleus for new recruits. Such is the present situation of this Company. It has force enough at this and all other important points to do the business which shall be brought to it, and the numbers are increasing as rapidly as they can be put to work. With the support and cooperation on the part of those whose interests it seeks to subserve, things will speedily right themselves, and the justice of the Company's position will be vindicated.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 5, 1870.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The difficulty now existing between the Western Union Telegraph Company and the members of the Telegraphers' Protective League, has become a subject of public interest, and it is this fact that prompts us to fairly state our position in the matter. Erroneous impressions have been conveyed by the publication of reports in the newspapers ostensibly with a view to general information, but really in the interest of our late employers. These impressions it is our duty to counteract. In doing so, however, we desire it to be distinctly understood that our only purpose is to correctly inform the public, and not create a false sentiment by an ex parte statement in relation to the affair. Our organization is composed of independent divisions known as Circuits. One of these is designated as the Grand Circuit, and is intrusted with the performance of duties incumbent on that position. The preamble of our Constitution sets forth that "the nature of our business is such that a vast combination of capital must necessarily intervene between our most intelligent efforts and a commensurate reward of an appreciative public; and that we seek not only to protect our own rights, but those of the public, by retaining in our ranks the most worthy and skillful operators in the country, instead of allowing them to be driven from the profession through the unjust exercise of superior power wielded by the willing agents of our employers, who are seeking official commendation by the exhibition of parsimonious economy. Our organization extends to and includes members at San Francisco, Cal. On Friday, Dec. 31, 1869, our grand chief operator received a message in cipher, informing him that on Monday, Jan. 3, the members at San Francisco would decline to submit to a reduction which the Company proposes to make in their salaries. The next day, Saturday, Jan. 1, we received another dispatch from them informing us that two minutes had been discharged for refusing to submit to the reduction, and that they had struck at by stopping work, and calling upon other Circuits to aid them. Accordingly on Jan. 3, they suspended work. This Committee was convened at a meeting of the New-York Circuit, and instructed to negotiate for an amicable settlement by requesting that the salaries of the members at San Francisco be not reduced, and that those who were discharged for refusing to accord to the proposed reduction be reinstated. In reply, Western Union officials stated, on the authority of Mr. MUNFORD, their agent at San Francisco, that no salaries had been reduced.

In a second communication we endeavored to effect an honorable and amicable settlement, insisting upon the reinstatement of members whose salaries had been reduced, and assuring the Western Union Executive that members at other points who had also suspended work would resume their duties. This proposition was rejected, and the case, as of present stands thus: The Western Union officials rely implicitly upon Mr. MUNFORD's statements; the members of the League believe that the statements of our circuit officer in San Francisco are strictly true, and shall continue to believe them until, if ever, we see in the visiting event we will return to our duties at former salaries, guaranteeing to members and non-members who have sided us in this difficulty, the benefits and protection of our League in the future. In the meantime, this Committee await the action of the Western Union Company, with a view to effecting a peaceable settlement of this difficulty.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The telegraphers' strike continues, but there is nothing new about it. The Western Union office is working with a very limited force, but promises improvement in a day or two. The affair is not without its humorous effects through the imperfections of the substitutes brought in the place of the regular operators. Last night your correspondent wrote that in consequence of the strike correspondents sat with idle pens. The telegraph rendered it, "correspondents sit in the idle pews."

Reception of the Remains of Mr. Peabody.

From the Boston Post, Jan. 5.

The funeral train that is to convey the remains of the late GEORGE PEABODY from Portland to Peabody is now being prepared at the car shop of the Eastern Railroad, in Salem. It will consist of three of the finest cars of the road and a baggage car. The cars Nos. 14, 15 and 77 have been selected. In No. 77 the seats have been removed, and a raised dais, ten feet in length and two feet square, erected in the centre, covered with black velvet, bordered with silver braid, and fastened with massive silver fringe, studded with silver rosettes and tassels. On this the casket is to rest, securely fastened. The car is lined with alternate stripes of black and white alpaca pendent from the centre of the monitor roof and looped back to the sides above the windows. At each end the "Cross of St. George" and the "Star Spangled Banner" are hung and looped back in the same manner, covered with black crape so that the colors are dimly seen through it, while the car will be redolent with the perfumes of choice flowers. A handsome carpet, in which black and green are appropriately blended, covers the floor. The splendid locomotive that bears the name of the Revered dead will be used to convey the train to and from Portsmouth, N. H., the junction of the Eastern and Portsmouth, Saco and Portland Railroad. From Portsmouth one of the engines of that road will be used, appropriately trimmed. The train will be met at Beverly by the Committee of the Salem City Government and escorted through the city limits to Peabody. The bell of the city will be tolled from the time the train leaves Beverly until it arrives in Peabody. The monitor Terror having received her powder on board proceeded to the anchorage ground in "President Roads" yesterday afternoon, where the screw steamer Alaska is now at anchor. Both vessels will sail for Portland to-day. The Monrovia, the vessel engaged in bringing Mr. PEABODY's remains, is expected daily. She will stop only a day or two in Portland, and will return at once under sail alone. She carries a crew of 600 men. What the definite arrangements will be in Portland cannot be ascertained until the arrival of GEORGE PEABODY RUSSELL, Esq., the nephew of the deceased, who has charge of the remains, and who is on board of the Monarch.

The Caldwell Extradition Case—The Argument Before the Superior Court Judges Closed.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5.—The arguments in the Caldwell case, before Judges BADGLEY and MONCK, of the Superior Court, were concluded to-day. The points raised on the part of CALDWELL are: That under Judge COURSOL's warrant the prisoner could not be arrested in Ontario; that a Magistrate has no power to put in a new commitment; technical objections to form of the warrant; that the evidence does not establish forgery; that at most the pretended offence was only a misdemeanor, and extradition could only take place for forgery. Judgment will be given on Friday next. CALDWELL has comfortable rooms in Jail at his own expense.

THE RED RIVER.

The Reported Stock Raid—Conflicting Testimony Regarding Its Author—Prisoners Released—The Fate of Four a Mystery—Object of the Revolt.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The Tribune has the following special from St. Paul of this date:

Governor MCDOUGALL left to-day for Canada, leaving his wife and children behind. Mr. DENNIS sailed this forenoon on General HANCOCK, commanding that Department, and denounced the reports published the morning regarding the movements of the Sioux Indians upon the American settlements in the Spring, and proposing against a military action being taken. Between two and three, from Pembina also called upon General HANCOCK, and placed in his hands documents supporting the assertions of the threatened Sioux raid, and asking for military protection. General HANCOCK asked for copies of the documents to be forwarded to the War Department, and said he should wait instructions, though he did not think any movement of troops this Winter would be necessary."

Mr. LAUNA, editor of the Windsor, Canada, Record, arrived at St. Paul last night from Fort Garry. He says the prisoners captured by the insurgents were all sentenced to banishment, except SCHULTZ, MOIR, SNOW and HALLETT. Their fate is not known. All the banished prisoners went to Pembina on the 26th ult. Governor MCDOUGALL, in anticipation of this, provided for their conveyance to St. Paul before he left. Mr. LAUNA denies the Shultz gunpowder plot.

Governor MCDOUGALL, his daughter and three sons, arrived here this morning from St. Paul, and left this afternoon at 5 o'clock on the Michigan Central Railroad. He asserted, in an interview to-day, that the Red River war was an insignificant affair, so far as numbers and influence of the insurgents is concerned. Most of the insurgents, he said, are controlled by the Postmaster at Fort Garry, who caused the seizure of Governor MCDOUGALL's correspondence, and put him to other trouble. He says he did not wish to precipitate civil war, and ordered his adherents to quietly pursue their avocations until some steps are taken by the Canadian Government. It takes eight days to come from Pembina to the nearest railroad station in Minnesota. During the trip of the party down the thermometer stood at 30° below zero. Governor MCDOUGALL says the movement of the rebellion is in the interest of annexation to the United States, but he thinks the people will not sustain it.

The receipts of the State Treasury during the year were $8,346,000, and expenditures $8,246,000, including $472,000 expended towards the reduction of the public debt, leaving a balance in the treasury of $1,626,000. The total amount of the State debt is $30,815,000. The total reduction of the debt since January, 1868, has been $4,000,000. He recommends the establishment of a home for disabled soldiers as a refuge for those now compelled to beg for a livelihood in the streets of the cities. The Florida disaster is referred to and a law recommended enforcing statement regulations to prevent a recurrence of such calamities. He recommends an additional Judge of the Supreme Court as a public necessity. He deprecates the movement made by the free traders to obtain the introduction of steel and iron free of duty. He favors the reconstruction of Cuba, and says it geographically belongs to the United States. Reported Self-Immolation of Salnave and His Fourteen Sons—Opposition to the Sale of the Bay of Samana.

ST. THOMAS, via HAVANA, Jan. 5.—It is reported that the Cacos are besieging Port-au-Prince, and that they have made a breach in SALNAVE's lines. On the 22d of December SALNAVE retreated to Fort Petion, where he fired the magazine, and, with his fourteen sons, perished. Another report in circulation is that SALNAVE has fled to San Domingo and claimed the protection of President BAEZ. Generals LITERIER and CAMBAL have published a protest against the sale of the Bay of Samana to the United States. They are bitter against BAEZ.

The Democratic State Convention of New-Hampshire—The Nomination for Governor—A Eulogist of the Late Franklin Pierce Silenced.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 5.—The Democratic State Convention met here to-day. There was a full attendance. Hon. HENRY BURNHAM, of Littleton, was chosen permanent President, and one Vice-President was chosen from each county. Mr. BURNHAM's address was cut short for want of time to finish it in. General JOHN BEDEL, of Bath, was nominated for Governor, and General M. T. DONAHOE for Railroad Commissioner—both by acclamation. The report on resolutions was read:

The first expresses abiding faith in the principle of the party and opposition to reconstruction; and denounces the action of Congress in relation to Georgia. The second is on the subject of taxation and internal revenue and the tariff. The third on public honesty and fidelity in public officials. The fourth denounces monopolies as unjust and prejudicial to progress. The fifth declares corporations and monopoly were instruments of evil. The sixth declares that all securities, bonds and securities should be taxed. The seventh declares that the debts, not otherwise specified, should be paid in currency. The eighth offers a tribute to the memory of the late President PIERCE. The ninth thanks the gentlemen of the members to elect the nominees of the Convention.

Hon. ISAAC ADAMS, of Sandwich, entered his protest against the sixth and seventh resolutions. Mr. PERRY, of Keene, undertook to pass a eulogy on the late President PIERCE, but made but little progress amid the stamping and other efforts to put him down. A committee of three was appointed to notify the candidates of their nominations. The Convention then adjourned.

FRANCIS ROBINSON, of Blackinton, Conn., was bitten by a mad dog thirty years ago, and about once a month ever since has had fits, during which he barks like a dog and froths at the mouth.

The New-York State Temperance Society will hold its annual meeting in Amsterdam, Montgomery County, on the 18th and 19th inst. Each church and temperance society is invited to send two delegates.

The editor of what is now the first paper in Oregon, who was the first graduate of the Oregon University, is making his first visit east of the Mississippi. He is now in Springfield, Mass., and can't help wondering that "everything is so old around there."

And yet again the Charleston News appeals to the planters of the South to diversify their crops. Plant corn! corn! corn! it cries; "the cotton which bleaches the fields may crown our hard endeavor, but what we loan on most is—bread, the staff of life."

The San Francisco Alta says that if there is a conflict between the shipbuilders on one side, and merchants generally on the other, the latter will have the public opinion of the Pacific coast on their side, for they are the larger and more important class everywhere, and relatively larger there than on the Atlantic coast.

Prince ARTHUR and his party were more successful in their moose hunting expedition than was first reported. They "bagged" one moose, one bear and five deer. The Prince also took part in felling a pine tree, and, as we are assured by an enthusiastic Canadian, performed the part of an axman with credit to himself and great satisfaction to all present.

Hon. MADISON NELSON, one of the Judges of the Maryland Court of Appeals, died on Saturday, aged about 70 years. The Baltimore Sun says he was a man of very decided talents, and had a quick, sagacious and penetrating mind, but his attainments as a lawyer were not remarkable.

Mr. WILLIAM H. RHINEHART has sent from Rome to Baltimore his model of the statue of the late Chief Justice TANEY, to be erected at Annapolis, in accordance with an act of the Maryland Legislature. One of Massachusetts' new Mayors in his inaugural address on Monday gave utterance to this sentiment: "As the eastern horizon of the present is made glorious with its beaming rays of opportunity, so may the sunset hour of the future, by the refractive influences of faithful duty, greet us with its gorgeous panoply of prismatic light."

The steamship China, which recently arrived at San Francisco, from China and Japan, brought 3,000 cards of silkworms' eggs, which are coming through to New-York via the Pacific Railroad. Their destination is Lyons, France. The French shippers are dissatisfied with their experience in shipping the eggs via the Isthmus of Suez, and have tried the experiment of a shipment across the American continent.

The Sherman Brigade had a reunion in Mansfield, Ohio, on Friday last. Senator SHERMAN, by whom it was organized and for whom it was named, presided, and General SHERMAN sent a letter expressing regret at his inability to be present, and saying he was glad that they proposed not to allow the memories of the war to fade into oblivion, but to cherish them and transmit them to the future.

The Government built a huge stone Custom House and Post Office, with iron doors, in Portsmouth, N. H., and then put a wooden box in a window to receive letters at night. On Sunday night some thief with a jack-knife cut out the front of the box, took all the letters and departed. The builder should have remembered that "a chain is only as strong as its weakest link."

The Charleston (S. C.) News announces the departure of the Spanish gunboats from that port on Saturday last, in company with the frigate Pizarro, which was in waiting outside, and says: "Two of the gunboats have not been heard from, and are supposed to have been lost on the North Carolina coast. The wind was very high on Saturday night, and the seagoing qualities of the 'mosquito fleet' were doubtless severely tested."

There was a balloon ascension at Atlanta, Ga., on New Year's Day, Dr. GILBERT HASSE going up alone, and the Era tells the following in relation to it: "When the balloon had reached the height of about one mile, those who were watching it were horrified to see it explode and collapse in the upper air. For about an hour the anxiety was very intense, when, to the astonishment of every one, the doctor rode in sound in body. The doctor fell about three miles out of town, and the only injury he sustained was a few scratches from some bushes in which he fell."

OUR SHIPPING INTERESTS.

The Appointment of Shipping Commissioners—Messrs H. Grinnell Submits the Draft of the Proposed Act of the Shipowners' Association of New-York—Its Action Unfavorable.

A special meeting of the Shipowners' Association of New-York was held yesterday afternoon at No. 80 Pine-street, which was called to order by Mr. GRINNELL, Esq. The Chairman presented the draft of an act to be presented to Congress this session, which had been sent him by Mr. MORRIS H. GRINNELL, with the request that he would submit it to the Association and get its opinion on it at the shortest notice. The act, covering twenty-eight closely-printed quarto pages, was then read, and is headed as follows: "An act to authorize the appointment of Shipping Commissioners by the Judges of the several District Courts of the United States of America to superintend the shipping and discharge of seamen engaged in merchant ships belonging to the United States, and for the further protection of seamen." Its main features relate to the following subjects:

The appointment of Commissioners by District Judges; the nature of the bond and oath of Commissioners; facilities extended to them in employ department; penalties for demanding money of master or seaman; penalties for Commissioners to transact business on the Outside Home; apprenticeships; the same to be proven before a Commissioner; penalties for receiving remuneration from seamen; agreements of seamen; rules on agreement, and form of such rules; on discharge; penalty for shipping seamen without agreement duly entered; penalty for a seaman not to be shipped in presence of the United States Consul; allotment of wages; particulars required in advance notes; recovery of wages in case of illegal allotment; penalties for forfeiture of wages; articles of agreement to be placed in every ship; commencement of seamen's wages; wages to be given in a certain form; payment of wages to be given by master on discharge; Commissioner to discharge seamen; penalties for receiving remuneration from seamen; agreements of seamen; rules on discharge port that the People of New-York, by the Deputy Attorney-General of the State, had thrown the Atlantic and Great Western Railway Company into insolvency, turns out to have been a mere trick of the Erie Ring, and on proper representations to the Attorney-General himself, at Albany, the following day, time has been granted for a rehearing of the case by the real representatives of the Atlantic and Great Western Company, in place of the bogus Attorneys which are reported to have appeared in the Supreme Court on their behalf. The whole proceeding on Friday last turns out to have been another of the very numerous theatrical es parte performances of late, of the Erie party, before the Courts of New-York, sanctioned in this instance, and in others, by Justice BARNARD, of the Supreme Bench, though we are far from believing that he will continue his order on the exposure of the transparent rascality of the proceeding. The movement, it turns out, as we supposed it would, was designed to anticipate the removal of JAY GOULD and O'DONNETT as Receivers of the New-York Division of the Atlantic and Great Western, as applied for by the Trustees of the New-York Divisional Mortgagees at Fredonia, Chatauqua County, (Eighth Supreme Court Circuit,) last week. But in this it utterly failed. JAY GOULD and O'DONNETT have been promptly removed by Justice BARNARD, of the Eighth Circuit; and Judge HITCHCOCK, of Ashtabula, the Receiver appointed at Akron, Ohio, a few weeks since, for the Ohio Division, with the understanding that he would be appointed in Pennsylvania and New-York, was placed in charge of the road.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The Senate, on the reading of the Journal, took up the resolution relating to the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and after debate passed it by a vote of yeas 15, nays 12. Notice was given of a bill to amend the New-York and Long Island Bridge act, and one to amend the "Conspiracy act." The Senate agreed to adjourn to-day to Tuesday next, and then adjourned.

In the Assembly Mr. JACOBS, from the Committee on Rules, reported rules increasing standing committees from seven to nine members each, and others from five to seven, and the Sub-Committee of the Whole to sixteen; also, restricting the clerical force of leading committees to one clerk, which would reduce the number hitherto employed from thirty-four to twelve; also, restricting the pages employed to twenty, all of which were agreed to. Among the measures introduced were bills to repeal the "Conspiracy act," the Excise law, to amend the Metropolitan Police law, and compel gas companies to report annually to the Comptroller. In the afternoon the concurrent resolution of the Senate to repeal the resolution of last session, by which the Fifteenth Amendment was adopted, was received. After debate the resolution was adopted by a vote of 69 to 56. The House concurred in the Senate resolution to adjourn from to-day to next Tuesday, and then adjourned.

LOCAL.

Yesterday a voluminous report on street cleaning was handed in to the Commissioners by Contractor BROWN. The Working of the Ballot—An Inquiry Answered.

Mr. DAVID WATSON, a Scotch gentleman, has sent out a circular to this country, accompanied by a commendatory letter from Mr. JOHN STUART MILL, making a number of inquiries about the working of the ballot in the United States. Mr. WATSON and his friends, including Mr. MILL, are opposed to its introduction into England, but are nevertheless desirous of more light on the subject, and desire to derive a part of it at least from our experience. They are apparently under the impression that there is a difference of opinion on the subject among us, and that there are persons here who think something would be gained by open voting. If so, they may rest satisfied they are mistaken. There is nobody here who thinks of any other mode than the ballot of taking the popular verdict about men or measures any more than English clubs think of open voting on the application of candidates for admission. The ballot is accepted by all parties and sects, "advanced" or retrograde, wise or foolish, as one of the ultimate facts of our system, and this for various reasons, the principal of which are, that it is the quickest and most convenient mode of collecting the suffrages of large constituencies; that it is certainly the system under which voters are most effectually protected against intimidation, and bribers rendered least certain of getting the value of their money. Moreover, it is a well-settled principle in American politics—whether a wise one or not, is another question—that the way a man votes is nobody's business but his own; that the community has a right to satisfy itself as to the validity of his claim to the franchise, but that here its jurisdiction ends. It has no right to institute any inquiry into his motives, or exercise any surveillance over him by way of strengthening his moral feeling.

At the same time it would give a very false impression of the state of things among us, to say that the ballot is a perfect means of securing secrecy. We doubt if one person in a thousand values it mainly as a means of concealing the way he votes. The political opinions of nearly everybody who has any, are well known to all his neighbors. Indeed, it would take an entire change in American life and manners for a man who voted to keep so close about his political leanings as to leave his friends in ignorance which side he stood by on election day. What, with talking politics at home, at the post office and grocery, or the workshop, and attending political meetings and debates, there are few men in America whose political opinions are not as familiar to those who care anything about them, as the color of their hair or beard. No official has any right to inspect his vote, but then there is nothing to prevent the voter from proclaiming it as he goes to the polls.

But then there is one thing of which we would warn our English friends, and that is that what keeps up party discipline here is not intimidation, but the hopelessness which nearly every person feels about being able to do anything outside the great party lines. Nobody who votes likes to feel that he is throwing his vote away. There are few or no "irreconcilables" in American politics—few men who use their vote simply as a means of "testifying" against some enormity. The temperance movement supplies a small body of them in one State or other every year; but then they are hardly worth mention as a sect. The practical view of political, as of most other things, is so powerful that nearly everybody who votes wants to make his vote tell, and this he knows he cannot do outside the two great parties of the day. The power of the party organization, too, is increased by the multiplicity of elections. Multiplicity of candidates, representing various shades of opinion, and offering themselves to the electors on their own motion, as in France and England, are possible where elections occur every six or seven years only, and where there is nobody to elect but members of the Legislature. Electioneering there is a comparatively simple matter, which everybody can understand. The voter can examine the candidates' claims and professions for himself, and decide for himself how he will vote without stopping to consult a party agent at the polls. But as soon as all offices, or even a great number of offices are made elective as with us; and terms of office are so short that elections recur very frequently, and with a large number of candidates of whom he knows nothing, and with the best wish in the world can learn very little, the caucus and the "managers" have to be introduced into the elective machinery, and the voter has to fall into the ranks, keep step and obey orders. The ticket contains a great many names, which have to be written with perfect accuracy, and various offices have to be filled, which must be correctly described on the ticket, in order to enable it to be counted, and this, of course, makes the voter very dependent on the party managers, and, in so far as he is dependent on them, secrecy becomes difficult.

However, we think that whatever the merits or demerits of the ballot may be, the English reformers may rely on it that great popular constituencies as those of England now are, will not submit very long to the present mode of eleventh voting. The ballot is an essential feature of democratic government; open voting is the system of freeholders. They are far less likely to submit to it in a country where class divisions are still so deep, and the influence of landlords or employers still so great. All attempts to persuade them into doing so on the ground of its affording a guarantee of purity and public spirit, are, as it seems to us, likely to prove futile, in the presence of the exposures now every day made of the shocking corruption of English constituencies. Nothing like it is known here. We have our corruption, too, but it is amongst legislators who vote openly, and not amongst the masses who vote in secret.

Speaker Hitchman's "War"—The Programme of the Tammany Ring.

Regarded simply in itself, the late belligerent demonstration of the Hon. WM. HITCHMAN of New-York, Speaker of the Assembly, is not, perhaps, entitled to grave consideration. That sublimely spotless body, the Tammany Ring, gave utterance to its pure and patriotic indignation against "Congress," much to the same effect already two months ago. Mr. PETER B. SWEENY was the mouthpiece of this saintly Augur on that occasion; Mr. HITCHMAN, the Tammany Speaker, is its chosen vehicle now. We regret that, as our Albany correspondent has said—

> "The idea of the Clerk of the Board of Education of the City of New-York, arraigning Congress in a half-column speech, and winding up by a challenge to the United States Government to execute the laws in the State of New-York 'if it dare,' was regarded by most of those who heard it as the very highest achievement in the line of the ridiculous."

But, on the other hand, the simultaneous utterance of the same cry from three sources, on the same day, forbids us to pass it over as an ordinary effusion of rhetoric.

While the newly-elected Speaker of the Assembly charges that "Congress has become omnipotent," and that "a war by the Government against all the States has been inaugurated," the leader of the Senate, Mr. TWEED, brings in a bill to rescind and annul the last Legislature's ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment. And, simultaneously, Governor HOFFMAN, in his Message, "protests against the revolutionary course of Congress" in divers and sundry particulars which are set forth with abundant vehemence. Thus, from three sources, its Governor, its Senate and its Assembly, our State is apparently made to assume a hostile attitude to the Government, precisely as, through the same agency, she was apparently made to assume that position at one time during the war. Speaker HITCHMAN caps the climax of absurdity by closing his address with the terrible menace, "Let New-York, when the roll of States is called, announce that she does not consent to the amendment, and let Congress count her as consenting ('it dare.')"

In this terrible emergency it is some consolation to know that these triple menaces, though diverse in expression, are one in origin. As "Orator Puff" had three tones to his voice, so Tammany has, in this matter, three pipes to its organ, which last is nevertheless supplied by one bellows, and plays the same tune. Mr. HITCHMAN is charged with executing the spirited trumpet-tone of "war;" Mr. TWEED is instructed with the practical stop of the annulling resolution; Governor HOFFMAN sounds the deep note of dignified and solemn remonstrance. But it is all one tune, namely, Tammany, and the curious question comes up, why that immaculate body thus opens the legislative ball by a movement against Congress, and what it expects to make thereby.

Now, regarded as a political amusement, this anti-Congressional crusade is not harmful, except in a very general way. Mr. HITCHMAN'S tirade against Congress for "devoting itself to systematic usurpation, by which the constitutional character of our Government is to be utterly subverted," has not even the merit of novelty, as there was plenty of the same talk down South some years ago. His fear of "the same tyranny as that threatened from the usurpation of a monarchy" is mere clap-trap. And as to the talk of "Congress conspiring to grasp and control" power, so as to "perpetuate themselves in authority and set the people at defiance,"—this is but the distempered fancy of one familiar with Tammany proceedings. Though what should virtuous Tammany know about "grasping authority" and "regulating elections," or "setting the people at defiance?" As to the words of Governor HOFFMAN and the actions of Mr. TWEED, they are really quite as harmless as those of the more fervid HITCHMAN. If Tammany desires that New-York should put herself in the position of trying to stultify herself by passing Mr. TWEED'S resolution, very likely this can be accomplished—and there the matter will end.

But the question reverts, At what specially in the Ring aiming? It is quite possible that it is aiming not only at amusement but at diversion—at a diversion of public attention from the more practical matters it has in hand. Under the great hue-and-cry of "opposition to the usurpations of Congress," it can go quietly at work at its own schemes for taking care of the "dear people." The desire is a familiar one, and there is never so much danger to people's pockets as when a great noise is made regarding objects at a distance, and to which the unsuspicious citizen's attention is adroitly directed. We confess that it is with much misgiving that we have seen this great outcry—not misgiving as to Congress, or as to the country, nor as to the serenity of Tammany, but as to the pockets of our own taxpayers. And we shall be only too well pleased if this opening rhetorical blast shall blow over and do as little harm to the State as it will obviously do to Congress.

What Constitutional Government Has Done for Austria.

The Emperor FRANCIS JOSEPH was quite justified in boasting in his speech to the Reichsrath of the "progressive development" which has been the great characteristic of recent Austrian history. Under the influence of enlightened statesmanship, the troubles which prevented the growth and expansion of the best interests of the country, are fast disappearing. The nearer Austria brings herself to freedom the more prosperous she becomes. The lesson of the war with Prussia proved to be the last that was needed to bring Austria to a true appreciation of her weakness and her strength. Prostrated to the dust by that contest, she rose to profit by her calamities. She resolved to recruit her strength by bringing into harmony the various peoples who are brought together under her rule. From being the model despotism of the world, she is passing to the front rank of constitutional nations. No doubt much remains to be accomplished; but it is wonderful how far she has already traveled on the road, considering the accumulated prejudices against which she had to make her way.

The Emperor reminded the Reichsrath that in the constitutional reforms which are now in contemplation, and to which he is not opposed, it is necessary to remember that the welfare of the whole Empire must be studied before the conflicting interests of different localities—or rather, that the latter could not flourish unless the Empire generally was in a healthy condition. In this view all impartial outside observers coincide with the Emperor. A strong Austria, as one of those observers has remarked, is the best guarantee now for the good government of the various countries embraced within it. The Government has undoubtedly evinced a strong disposition to adopt a liberal policy in reference to each nationality, and although the fires of discontent still smoulder here and there, it is quite clear that the people as a whole are far better off than they have been for many years past. The Slavonic element in Dalmatia is, for instance, one of the most stubborn with which the Government has to deal, but recent letters inform us that even this is gradually yielding to gentle influences.

The Emperor made no allusion to the subject of finance in his address, but it may fairly be said that the country is much further removed from that oft-predicted "bankruptcy" than it was a year ago. Whatever difficulties may be before it now, they are unimportant in comparison with those which Baron BEUST first encountered. The spectacle of Austria emerging from the gloom and poverty which so long marked her history, even before she has espoused the advanced principles of freedom found in strictly constitutional countries, is no slight example of the blessings which liberty carries with it.

The Strike of the Telegraphers.

When the Western Union Telegraph operators attempt by a strike to obstruct even temporarily the business of the whole country, they should, at least, take care to be provided with a real grievance. Otherwise the public, which generally forms a pretty accurate judgment upon such matters, will not extend to them its sympathy, nor deem their action justified. The case as between the telegraphers and the Company stands at present thus: The Protective League of the former say that the Company reduced the salaries of certain operators at San Francisco, and that those who refused to submit to the reduction were discharged. And they require that the discharged men be reinstated at their old salaries, and that no reduction take place in any cases. This statement is clear and simple enough, but unfortunately, for the credit of the strikers, it rests on no basis of truth. General PALMER, the Secretary of the Company, distinctly disavows any knowledge of an intention to lower salaries, on his own part or that of Mr. MUMFORD, the Agent at San Francisco. This latter gentleman, on being questioned by General PALMER, is as explicit. He says, in words susceptible of no misinterpretation, "I have reduced no salaries," and he adds that he has had "no intention of doing so." Two men were discharged for two reasons—they "were trying to make disturbance," and the force was unnecessarily large. And "the plea of a general reduction is without the slightest foundation as a matter of fact."

The League, in reply to these denials, simply express their disbelief of them, and reiterate the demand for restoration of the San Francisco discharged operators. But, in addition to this, they announce that various of their members at different points "have already suspended work," and it is demanded that these latter be reinstated in their former positions, the time lost by the strike being deducted from their month's pay. And on being refused these conditions, and assured that they had been imposed upon by some of the brethren in San Francisco, they declare the strike general.

This, without a word of exaggeration, is the whole story. There is but one inference possible to be drawn from it. The strike was evidently resolved upon by a few leaders, pretext or no pretext. A complaint that two men, who are not named, but who, we presume, will be, were dispensed with for what, as any person in his senses will agree, their employer had a right to consider good cause, is all the capital of fact the leaders had to work upon. It sufficed for their purpose. But are not the great body of the telegraphers thereby placed in a false position? They are lending themselves to a transaction which their better judgment can never approve. The only result must inevitably be injury to themselves, if they persist in a course which is no less than folly. Had the cause for a strike really existed, they might have claimed the public sympathy; no cause exists, however, and they simply are made to appear as a body of intelligent and respectable persons who are hoodwinked by false friends working in secret for their own private aims.

Shall the Authors of the Brooklyn Election Frauds be Punished?

In the effort which District-Attorney MORRIS is now making to preserve the purity of elections and to bring the conspirators against the ballot box to trial and conviction, he should receive the earnest and cordial support of all good citizens. Few public officials of the present day have the courage to attack so powerful a combination as the Democratic Ring of Kings County. This Ring has had for years the absolute control of the political machinery which governs Brooklyn. Its patronage is immense, and the number of men who are dependent on its favor for a living and for the opportunity to make fortunes, may be counted by thousands. When we consider that in population Brooklyn is the third city in the Union, that the Ring has complete control over every one of its numberless jobs; that it levies, collects and expends its millions of taxes; that it opens, pares, repairs and cleans its hundreds of miles of streets, and disburses, or pretends to disburse, $550,000 annually among the poor of the city, a considerable proportion of which, however, is believed to be distributed among Democratic voters and politicians who would feel insulted if called paupers;—it is easily understood how it is that the shrewd men who constitute the leaders of this Ring are able to command so numerous a following, largely composed of the very worst elements to be found in a great city. The City Government of Brooklyn, like that of New-York, is conducted strictly on a financial basis. The different Rings which seek to control it are simply commercial adventures. And the only question of local government is which Ring shall have the different jobs, and how much money over and above the actual cost of the work shall be extorted from the people.

The real governors of Brooklyn are its contractors. For years a majority of the delegations in the Assembly have been owned by them, and the Senators have found it always difficult, and frequently impossible, to resist their influence. Whatever job needed legislative sanction or authority received it. Any bill in the contractors' interest was put through, regardless of expense. Rumor fixes the amount paid by them for a single bill last Winter at $80,000.

Of course one result of the contractors' government has been an increase of taxation. Year by year the people of Brooklyn have seen their taxes increase at a rate which has few parallels. The discussion which resulted from the act of the Assessors increasing the assessed valuation of the real estate of Kings County twenty-five per cent. produced a profound sensation on the public mind of Brooklyn. Taxpayers were everywhere alarmed at the frightful proportions which taxation had assumed, and the conviction became general that the only remedy was to expel the Ring from power. The members of the Ring saw the danger and determined to avert it. They resolved to take absolute control of the ballot boxes, and to exclude their opponents from all participation in the reception and counting of the votes. None but their trusted tools were appointed inspectors or canvassers of election. But the scheme was not well organized, and some one blundered. They counted in most of the candidates; but, through a miscalculation, failed to count in CUNNINGHAM. This overnight they attempted to supply by forgery. Various returns were taken and altered. The forgery was detected, and, through the energy and boldness of District-Attorney MORRIS, the whole scheme is likely to be exposed and its authors, as well as its tools, brought to justice. In this effort he stands alone, fighting single-handed the entire Democratic Ring. The leaders understand the desperate character of the struggle and act accordingly. At one time it seemed that the party would divide on this question, the better, if not the larger portion, under the lead of the Democratic organ—the Brooklyn Eagle supporting MORRIS. But as soon as the Eagle pronounced against the Ring the latter purchased the Brooklyn Union and threatened Mr. VAN ANDEN, the proprietor of the Eagle, with an opposition Democratic paper. Mr. VAN ANDEN did not feel called upon to risk so great a property in such a contest, and offered to sell the Eagle, also, to the Ring for the sum of $300,000. The offer was promptly accepted, and thus the Ring captured and silenced the Democratic organ.

Some Democrats who have heretofore supported MORRIS now waver, but, nothing daunted, he fights on. He knows the power of a judicial exposure of crime, and of convictions and sentences in criminal Courts. The friends of good government in Brooklyn know that their District-Attorney is engaged in a great contest for the purity of the ballot box, and for honest and economical government. He is struggling against those who would silence the voice of the people, that they may continue to increase taxation. Over and above the many millions of taxes which have been paid them during the past year, they have increased the public debt of the City upwards of six millions of dollars, and they are likely to increase it an equal amount during the year to come. The Brooklyn people owe it to Mr. MORRIS, and to the friends of honest elections everywhere, to support him in his efforts to break the power of this Ring, and to give back the government of the City into the hands of the people.

It is really too soon to cry out against the pneumatic people who have undertaken to make a tunnel under Broadway, if they have only got so far as the middle of the street already. It is a remarkably slow rate of speed, seeing that they began work so many months ago at the sidewalk or under it. If matters proceed at this deliberate pace, we shall probably have our great Brooklyn bridge, our new Post Office, and our elevated railway in good working order long before the tunnel shall have come within its two hundred feet of Cedar-street. For the rest, we think the promoters of it should have taken the public a little more into their confidence and given them some cheerful, occasional glimpses of the work. People now think there must be some mischief in all the mystery, and are half afraid to walk Broadway lest they should meet the fate of Corah, Dathan and Abiram without warning.

The decline of trade at the Port of Buffalo attracts attention from time to time, and has lately given rise to the publication of some statistics on the subject. Between 1850 and 1862 the trade constantly increased, but in 1862 a turn of fortune was experienced, and the decline has been steady ever since. A contemporary is disposed to attribute this falling off by the partial diversion of the lake trade to Cleveland and Erie. The competition of the great railway lines is another manifest cause of the decay in the lake trade. Under these circumstances, the projected efforts to build up once more the prosperity of the canal traffic are invested with an unusual degree of importance. There is great necessity for immediate action on the part of the people of Buffalo, or they may find that it is too late to recover their old position in the State.

A warning against amateur theatrical speculations is contained in an account of a melancholy death given in a Louisville contemporary. A young man named J. S. FLEMING, a resident of Louisville, took it into his head that if he could organize a dramatic company it would prove a short cut to fortune. He soon gathered the company together—but the fortune was not so easily secured. He started on a tour through Indiana, and everywhere failure stared him in the face. At last the troupe deserted him, and small blame to them considering that they had never been paid. Thus ruined and disappointed, Mr. J. S. FLEMING went on a ferry-boat, wrote a note explaining his circumstances and jumped into the Ohio River—another victim to the old delusion that steady, hard work, does not pay, and that rushing into hair-brained speculations does.

The Superintendent of Street Cleaning naively informs Mr. JOHN L. BROWN, the contractor, that "in consequence of misunderstanding, the great mass of the people are impressed with the belief that the contractor is little better than a swindler." May be so. What the people do not understand is this—that the present contractor, who is experienced in the business of street cleaning, bought Judge WHITING'S contract in May last, and did not make the purchase with his eyes shut. He was stated to have given $200,000 for the transfer. At all events, then, there was, in the opinion of Mr. WHITING, and, of course, Mr. BROWN also, at least that amount of profit attached to the work. The contract specified certain work to be done and the price to be paid for it. The new contractor accepted the price and undertook to fulfill the conditions imposed. The impression, or, as the Superintendent puts it, the "belief," is that the conditions have not been fulfilled. Now the City is asked to give double the money—a million instead of half that sum, and then it shall be kept clean. Probably the money will be given, and probably it will be used as before, and in no other way.

At a recent trial in England before Justice WILLES, in which a policeman was spoken of by one of the witnesses as a "copper," a discussion arose as to the meaning and derivation of the term. The Judge closed the discussion by saying that "it was undoubtedly derived from the word capo, I take." If the Judge had known of the case of the two policemen who were sent to State Prison the other day, by our Court of Sessions, for "taking purses," he would doubtless have cited it as a strong confirmation of his etymology. It would have found still stronger confirmation in Judge DOWLING'S remark, a day or two since, on sending a female pickpocket for trial. He is reported to have said: "I am certain that the Police of the Fifteenth Precinct cover these women in their pocket-picking, and I also know that they receive a commission on every trick they get through. This accounts for the audacity of the thieves and the increasing number of the victims. The Police are leagued with the thieves." The charge is too sweeping to be exactly just. But it is too specific and too startling to be passed unnoticed by the proper authorities.

We have often advised people to keep fast hold of their presence of mind when a panic occurs in a crowded building. A preacher in the "First Church," Springfield, Mass., gave a good illustration of what we mean last Sunday night. The congregation had assembled for a missionary meeting, in the midst of a violent storm. The wind increased every moment, and at last a tremendous crash was heard. Some thought that the roof was falling, others that the floor was giving way. In the midst of all this a reverend brother was offering prayer. When the alarm took place, he opened his eyes, looked quietly round, and then "resumed his former attitude, and went on with his praying precisely as though nothing had happened." In the presence of a man like that the most timid was ashamed to be seen running away. The coolness of one individual often suffices to check a "scare," even in the largest audience.

It is to be hoped that the resolution of Dec. 7, directing the Postmaster-General to inquire whether the money-order system may not be made available for the payment of army pensions, will not lie in abeyance longer than necessary. The present system involves great hardships, and should be abandoned. The continuation of pension agencies is now unjust to a very high degree. These agencies were perhaps well enough for the purpose of proving the validity of claims, and otherwise helping our disabled soldiers, though even they have been made the occasion of numberless abuses. For the Government to allow them to continue as disbursers of the half-yearly payments, charging a heavy commission for their services, is decidedly superfluous, and in fact cruel. Another reform is loudly called for by the poorer class of pensioners. They desire that the payments be made once a month instead of once every six. Correspondents tell us of cases in which families are, from unavoidable causes, reduced to great misery, while at the same time money is due them from the Government. Has not sufficient of this fact—the Ladies' Union Relief Association of this City can give ample testimony on the subject also—should be quite sufficient to induce a change. Formerly poor people used, in their sore need, to borrow money on their claim papers, which the claim agents retain to a very great extent. And the loans were made at as high as forty per cent. interest. The clerks who were guilty of this atrocious fraud enjoyed perfect impunity, for a complaint to Washington would insure, through their means, a stoppage of the pension altogether. The new Commissioner, Mr. VAN AERNAM, has put an end to this, however. But still more relief is needed. The soldier, or his widow and orphans, ought to be paid his money something like as often as other people, to whom the nation owes no gratitude, and to get, moreover, the full amount granted him, without any deduction or shave whatever.

The correspondent of a Chicago paper gives an account of various swindling schemes which are concocted in Colorado, from which we should judge that the Territory in question is almost as well supplied with rogues as New-York. To begin with, there are about half a dozen schemes for inducing people to become shareholders in mines, and afterwards plundering them. The "Ring" which gets up the speculation manages to defraud the shareholders whether the mine proves a success or a failure. If ore is found, frequent assessments are made until the innocent shareholder becomes disgusted, and sells out at any price. If the vein is barren, the original promoters sell out before the truth is discovered. Here is another neat little operation: a few individuals managed to secure a charter for the formation of a gas company in Denver. Among other clauses there is one which gives the said company the exclusive privilege of supplying gas to the town for fifty years to come, at a rate not to exceed five dollars per thousand feet. Various other inventions for victimizing the public are being tried. Who shall say that Colorado is not making progress?

Our readers will remember the reference we recently made to the proposition of a correspondent of the Chicago Bureau, to establish a system of meteorological observatories, with a view to the notification of the approach and force of storms. The same correspondent (Professor LAPHAM) now urges the importance of this project in a convincing communication. In connection with his letter is published a map which shows clearly the origin and progress of the great storm of March 14-17, 1859, and demonstrates to any observer that it might have been known on the lakes a whole day before it reached them. The question is, whether as a matter of commercial economy and security,—to say nothing of scientific inquiry on the one hand, and humanity in the saving of life on the other—we ought not to establish the kind of observatories called for by the Bureau. During the single storm of the 16th and 19th November seventy lives were lost on the lakes, besides thirty-seven vessels of various tonnage, making a total of 10,942 tons of shipping, valued at nearly half a million dollars. Sixty-two other vessels of various classes were lost in the same storm. Adding the valuable cargoes lost or damaged, we have a total loss of at least two millions of dollars. It is at least clear, as the Bureau says, that five per cent. of this might have been saved by timely notice. And what is true of this single storm must be multiplied by all the storms of a year.

It will be too bad if we should have to fight for our holding in Samana, after having paid for it. Yet we are threatened with something of this nature by the "Appeal," which we printed yesterday. The writer of it affects to think our people will supplant and exterminate the San Domingo laborers; whereas they will only increase the area and resources of labor on the island ten fold, greatly to the benefit of the Spanish population, as well as all others concerned. Instead of being thrust aside and walked over, the Islanders will have more opportunities of profitable work than they ever had in their lives before. It is not such a terrible prospect for them after all, and Uncle Sam is neither a Genghis Khan or a Tamerlane.

We believe there is a certain optical rule, whereby, under given conditions, objects can be best viewed by directing the instrument not point-blank upon the centre but a little to one side. Some such view as this appears to be the one suggested by the Detroit Post to members of Congress regarding their action on the franking privilege. That paper, like most of us, is anxious that Congressmen should see themselves as others see them, in this franking business. But, after holding up the mirror, the Post rather bluntly asks Congress not to look at itself, but at another body close by, the New-York Common Council! It coolly says:

> "They read of the members of the New-York Common Council voting themselves thousands and tens of thousands of dollars, and wonder how long the people of that City will endure the scandal and the theft. Yet in kind, and in reference to the degree of superiority of character which our Congressmen claim over that of the New-York Aldermen, in the retention of the franking privilege by those who insist upon its privilege, equally scandalous and equally shameful."

This is an unkind cut at somebody—in fact, at everybody. We feel sure that the comparison will enrage the Congressmen, and still more enrage the Councilmen—and with great reason in both cases. However, we will, with the Post, commend this phase of the subject to all high minded and honest Senators and Representatives.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

"HAMLET" AT BOOTH'S THEATRE.

"Hamlet" was acted last night at Booth's Theatre to an audience uncomfortably crowded as regards numbers, and probably as excellent as New-York can exhibit in point of intelligence. The play was elaborately and sumptuously placed upon the stage, and the costumes and decorations showed attempts at accuracy rarely seen in any theatre. Perhaps these details in some instances evinced more originality than demonstrable correctness; but in either case the labor and expense bestowed deserve ample acknowledgment. The scenery was admirable and uncommonly realistic. We scarcely remember a "set" in any theatre in either the Old World or the New surpassing that of the third act. The spectators were manifestly greatly pleased, although their satisfaction was rather indicated by fixed attention than by tumultuous applause. Exceptions to this must be noted at the end of each of the acts when Mr. BOOTH was summoned before the curtain. The performance in many substantial respects was highly successful, and this applies to some of its innovations as well as to its adherence to tradition. Our observations on the acting of the tragedy are reserved until to-morrow.

Correction.

We are requested by the relatives of Mr. JAMES B. PELL to say that he committed suicide while in a fit of temporary aberration of mind, caused by grief for the loss of his only brother, who died some time since, and that he had not been dismissing. Coroner ROLLINS held an inquest in the case yesterday, and the verdict was in accordance with this statement. Mr. PELL had been in ill health for some time. He was beloved and respected for his genial and manly qualities by all who knew him well.

ARRIVAL OF THE HAVANA STEAMSHIP COLUMBIA.

The steamship Columbia, which left Havana on Jan. 1, reached this port yesterday. The purser is once more entitled to our thanks for the prompt delivery of our letters and papers.

Carlist Plans—The Military Situation—Island Parties—The Casino Espanol—Who Rules Cuba—Advice to Prim—War News and Miscellaneous Intelligence.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, Jan. 1, 1870.

There is every reason to believe that the climax of the revolution is fast approaching and that the fate of the Island and its future destiny will not be solved by arms but by diplomacy. When some weeks ago I informed you that the Carlists were at work here and gaining proselytes in addition to the immense number they reckon already in their ranks, the generality of the people smiled at the assertion, simply because their information and the means of acquiring it did not extend beyond the confines of their home or the columns of the Diario. Perhaps they do not know that such influential Spaniards as DURANONA, ZULINTA, CARRERAS, PADRO, MONET and many others have always been members of the Carlist party. The people in Europe are better informed, and the Bourbon party, or rather that of ex-Queen ISABELLA, has become alarmed, and, in order to increase their effectiveness, they have sent the ex-Governor of Havana, GUTIERRES DE LA VEGA, as a Commissioner. This gentleman has already begun sounding and finds that he has to contend with the Casino Español, which will not listen to VEGA, whilst such men as the above mentioned control its acts, and may at any time pronounce in favor of Don CARLOS—that is, whenever a revolution breaks out in Spain. The Captain-General and nearly all the employes belong to the so-called progressistas or Union Liberals, involved in the September revolution and acting in concert with SERRANO and PRIM. It is asserted that, within the next two months, RODAS will be elevated to a Dukedom and be hereditary Grandee of Spain of the first class. All the military leaders, who belong to this party and were sent from Spain to this island, whence all had to return in disgrace, have received favors and a higher rank in the service—such as BUCETA, PELAEZ, LESCA and others. VALMASEDA, who is a strong partisan of the ex-Queen, and who has done more work than the rest of the Generals, remains as he was, and, if his stubbornness had not compelled him to remain at Bayamo and defend himself at all hazards, there is very little doubt but what the actual Government would have been rather pleased to see him defeated than otherwise.

But there is still another and more important question to be discussed behind the scenes—the early cession of the island to the United States. There is hardly any doubt that the actual Government in Spain is in treaty with the insurgents and the American Government. To mention this fact openly would be the signal of their downfall, and the immediate entrance of Prince ALFONSO as future King of the Spaniards, with CERRUTTI as Regent during his minority. There is only the diplomatic way to arrange and finish the Cuban question; mere feats of arms will not do it, and although the war bulletins give almost daily accounts of skirmishes and engagements, the end of the rebellion is as far removed as it was a year ago. Over 34,000 men have arrived from Spain since the beginning of the revolution. Many Spaniards and Cubans have died since then, but I cannot see any material change in the situation. Only three months are left the troops before the climate puts an end to military operations, and there is no evidence that the troops can master the revolution in that time. The soldiers are perhaps the best in the world, and their discipline and bravery cannot be surpassed; but they have to fight too many enemies, the most terrible of all being the Medical and Quartermaster's Departments and that inveterate pursuer of Europeans, Yellow Jack. Slight advantages have been gained lately, (given under the caption of 'war news,) but the seat of Government or rather the headquarters of the insurgents remains at Guaimaro, and the troops have not yet taken Cascoro, Sibanicu, Guaimarillo or Palo Quemado, although all these places are within short distances of the Spanish strongholds, Puerto Principe, Ciego de Arila, Nuevitas and Las Tunas. Naturally, the Spaniards must have work enough within the immediate vicinity of their strongholds, without the necessary elements to extend their field of operations. Time will tell, however, and that shortly; if the Spaniards don't quell the insurrection before the 1st of April, they never will.

REPUBLICANISM.

Speaking about the different parties I omitted the Republican Party, which exists, but dares not acknowledge its existence openly, because the populace considers the Republican Party of Spain and the insurgents in Cuba one and the same thing, although they have but one idea in common, that of improving the people and doing away with old abuses and prejudices.

THE CASINO ESPANOL.

But the strongest party here, and one composed of men belonging to the different parties of Spain, is the association known as the Casino Espanol. It in reality governs the island, and, if any reforms are granted by the Captain-General, the Executive Committee of this Casino has nearly always been consulted previous to the adoption of the measure. It has been known for some time that the Casino sent a lengthy statement to PRIM on the 18th of November last, but until this week the document was not published, the members of the Casino having sworn not to divulge its contents. This document is of paramount interest and importance, as it shows conclusively the aims and objects of the Spaniards in Cuba, their views and ideas. The following are extracts from the letter to PRIM:

* * * "The creation of the Casino Espanol of Havana is the result of the closest union between the Spaniards, it being the centre of all noble sentiments, and ideas and that whence incessant action departs towards the end we desire. And as the Government here cannot alone and by itself determine all reforms or solve other questions, we beg to advise your Excellency of the necessity not to decide upon anything prematurely, in order not to effect the close union which exists here at present. Your Excellency is well aware that this island, owing to its peculiar circumstances, cannot be governed like the peninsula. The Government over which you preside has been too lenient, and we all have felt the effects of this clemency, however, do well in Spain. The Casino also objects strongly to the Cuban Clubs in Spain, and requests that the Government punish the journalists who are writing so freely under the protection of the laws of Spain. We have learned with astonishment that a Spanish journal has spoken about the sale of the island, and are aware that you will not consent to it. If at some future time another Government should be compelled by the misery of the mother country to offer this island for sale, we will state that the Spaniards in Cuba may be conquered, but never sold; Cuba will remain Spanish, or else we will leave it converted into African ashes."

The document then continues to state that notwithstanding the reports to the contrary, the Spaniards are anxious to reform the existing Government, and desire a good administration; it regrets that the events on the island have created the so-called Spanish party, and that the larger majority of native Cubans is with the Spaniards. This is false; not over five per cent. of the Cubans are with the Spaniards, and if the corrupt and stupid aristocracy of wealth or title be deducted from this total, but few native Cubans will be found among the Spaniards, although some of this class are also to be found among the Cubans. The assertion that they will have Cuba converted into African ashes is another proof that the Spaniard born in Spain and the Cuban born in Cuba are about the same, and that their train of ideas and aims runs in the same direction. Incendiarism and cruelty are peculiar properties of the race, and unless the Anglo-Saxon element preponderates to such an extent as to defeat and neutralize its many peculiar characteristics, it would be a matter of general benefit to either leave Spaniards and Cubans altogether alone in the island, or else to take the island and compel them to live according to American laws and ideas. CADADAS' and CESPEDES' incendiary proclamations both find an echo in the assertion of the Casino, all men here know how to destroy; but they need the Anglo-Saxon race to teach them order and how to maintain it.

INCENDIARISM.

The Gaceta publishes a lengthy order from RODAS intended to prevent incendiarism and fires. The most important points are:

"Planters will inform the authorities of the number of armed men on their places; all armed persons will require permits from the Captain-General; the persons and owners of each place are ordered to report to the authorities immediately any disturbance on their places or in the vicinity, or else be liable to be tried as accessories to the crime. The employes on the plantations may detain any traveler who may be found on any plantation without the permission of the owner, and conduct him to the nearest authority; and also such as may be found about the places talking to negroes or Chinese. The roads in the places will be barred during the grinding season, and carrying of matches or smoking in the vicinity of the sugar house is strictly prohibited. Fifteen metres of space must be cleared all around the plantation, and the cutting of cane will begin around the mills and purging houses."

This order, if properly carried out, will prevent the total destruction of any plantation which may be set on fire either purposely or by accident.

WAR NEWS AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Engagements in the Cinco Villas are increasing in number, and if the telegrams are correct, the Spaniards have gained some slight advantages, but not a sufficiency to amount to much at present, unless the murdering of men should continue to a great extent, and thus deprive the Cubans of fighting men and abettors. About seventy-five insurgents have been killed during the week, and a hundred and fifty have presented themselves to solicit pardon. To give the same old details of these skirmishes would be uninteresting. The result summed up is, a few Cubans killed, the troops, according to their own story, always victorious, and the insurgents remaining in the field as before. Letters from Trinidad and other points announce, however, that the insurgents have been compelled to abandon their encampments in the immediate vicinity of the cities, their posts being now about two miles from the towns....A number of insurgents from Puerto Principe are marching towards Sancti Spiritus, and another from Villa Clara in the same direction. It is rumored that CAVADA will place himself at the head of the combined parties to attack some of the Spanish detachments and destroy the plantations in the Valley of San Luis. ....Many plantations in the jurisdictions of Trinidad, Cienfuegos and Villa Clara have begun grinding, and out of the 160 plantations in the jurisdiction of Matanzas 140 are at work. The Governor of Matanzas has issued an order requiring all citizens to deliver up their arms within twenty-four hours; if after the expiration of that time a house is reached and arms are found the owners will be tried by Court Martial.... Mr. PLUMB, ex-United States Consul, returns to-day to the United States. The merchants signed a letter, thanking him for his conduct while in office.....The Cable Company have made a reduction in their rates to the United States.... The most daring and successful leader of guerrillas in the Spanish army operating near Santiago de Cuba, is Major FRANCIS O'CALLAGHAN, an Irishman, who has been a merchant in Santiago. Several of his relatives have joined the army and the Cubans call him the ferocious Irishman!...New Year's was celebrated last night by a conflagration, supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. QUASIMODO.

Another Cuban Expedition—Departure of the Transport Bedoel—She Carries Ammunition and Arms—Three Cuban Privateers at Sea.

The English brig Bedoel, which has been lying at Pier No. 47 North River for some time past, was chartered by the Cuban Junta, it appears, to carry arms, ammunition and men to Cuba. She is a Clyde-built brig of 200 tons burden, and sails well. She came to this port in the first place from England, with an assorted cargo consigned to a prominent firm in New-York. It was discharged and the vessel repaired, after which it was reported that she had changed hands and hereafter would fly the American flag. A cargo was then put on board of her for Nassau, it was said, but in reality for the Cubans. Her destination really is Cuba, on the coast of which at the same place as, and under the convoy of the steamer Anna, the privateer whose departure was announced in these columns, her freight is to be discharged and transferred to the filibusters. It is believed that there are three Cuban privateers at sea to cooperate with and protect the Bedoel. The vessel does not go to sea entirely unprepared to do battle for her own safety if need be. She carries a crew of eighty men, two-thirds of whom are Americans, the rest Cubans. On deck, amidships, are two pivot guns, which can be worked if necessary. Her cargo consists of 102 cases of guns, 50 cases of cartridges, 32 cases of miscellaneous ammunition and 340 kegs of powder. Yesterday, at 4 P. M., she went to sea with an American clearance and under the American flag. Everything that could be done to keep the object of her voyage secret was attempted by the Cubans in this City. They are working hard to aid their struggling friends, and their operations are not confined to New-York alone.

The Spanish Gunboats—The Vessels Leave this Morning—Rumors of Mutiny Among the Firemen—Desertion from the First Squadron.

The Spanish flotilla lying off Staten Island were to have departed for Havana yesterday at 2 P. M., but their supply of fresh water did not reach them until a late hour in the afternoon. The water boats were brought alongside of the vessels and the work of filling up the tanks was carried on until a late hour last night. At sundown the Isabel Catolica hoisted the signal to prepare for sailing at 7 A. M. to-day. It was answered by each vessel of the flotilla and they will probably get under way by that hour.

This flotilla will proceed to Havana, and will not put into any port on the route, if possible, to prevent the desertion of any of the firemen, who have, as already stated, received their advance wages. Some of the men of the first squadron that left this port did desert. The vessels put into Charleston, where a number of the Americans got leave to go ashore. Having received their pay, the bills before leaving, which a week having elapsed since their departure from New-York, were cashed, the men thought it was a good chance to make a short and remunerative trip. Some of them returned to New-York, and applied for positions on board of this section of the fleet. They were recognized by Mr. PERZ and rejected. Nothing was done to punish the deserters.

Rumors of mutiny on board the gunboats were circulated on Tuesday, but the truth is that no such thing occurred. It appears that two of the assistant engineers on gunboat No. 1 wanted to secure leave for the purpose of signing their contracts with the Spaniards and to obtain their due bills. They were refused permission by the officer commanding the vessel, who, not understanding English, thought that the men had already received their money and wanted an opportunity to desert. In consequence of some display of impatience on their part, the officer put them under arrest, from which they were released at the solicitation of Mr. REYNOLDS, of the Delamater Iron Works. The men were afterwards discharged and other officers shipped in their places. The men, however, were not unwilling to go in the fleet, and applied for transfers to other gunboats. The Spaniards refused to take them at all.

Lecture on Temperance by Rev. J. Myatt Smith.

An interesting lecture was delivered last evening by Rev. Mr. SMITH at the Howard Mission and Home for Little Wanderers, in New-Bowery, on the subject of temperance. The lecturer commenced by saying that if it were known in the City of New-York at that moment that a tyrant had set up his throne here, ruling with omnipotent power, cruelly taking away all the property of the working classes, depriving children of their bread, and beating the wives and mothers, all this City would rise up en masse to crush the tyrant and deprive him of his power. And yet this was but a feeble picture of what rum is doing at present among us. The love of dram drinking was never more prevalent in this City than now. The speaker referred to a United States Senator in the Halls of Congress who was so drunk as to be unable to stand. He did not see any propriety in excusing or trying to cover up the faults of United States Senators and other high officials, when the meanest and lowest sot of the Fourth Ward was consumed and condemned without mercy. Strong drink, he said, was robbing the Bench, the Bar and the Pulpit of some of their brightest ornaments. The speaker related an interesting incident in regard to a prominent lawyer of Chicago, whom he met in the streets of Cleveland in an intoxicated condition. The love of drink was among all classes from the highest to the lowest. He thought that instead of beginning in the Fourth Ward, they ought rather to go on the Fifth-avenue. The laws we now have on the subject were all wrong. People could not be legislated into righteousness or schooled into morality. Moral suasion is the only true rule. You may lead men and women when you cannot drive them. The poor inebriate must be reached, if at all, by kindness, by considerate, thoughtful care, and by coming right down to the condition and capacity of the sufferer. Once arouse the feelings of hostility in the breast of one down in the gutter, and you cannot reach his heart. There is a soft spot in every man's heart, no matter how deadened, if you can only find it. Kindness, love, Christian benevolence, and, above all, charity, are the means that must be relied upon to stay the rapid strides which rum is now making in this great metropolis. He hoped, he said, there was present no woman who was addicted to drink. To see a woman drunk was worse than to witness the intoxication of one hundred men. The best New Year's present which a husband, addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, could present to his wife, would be his name signed to a total abstinence pledge.

SING SING STATE PRISON.

The Forthcoming Annual Report—Expenditures and Receipts of the Year—Interesting Particulars Concerning the Management of the Institution—Views of the Officials on Corporal Punishment.

The annual report of the Warden of the Sing Sing State Prison, Mr. HENRY C. NELSON, for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1869, has just been completed and presented to the Board of State Inspectors. It is a most interesting and voluminous document, and the figures here given will be found to be not only correct, but published exclusively in the columns of the TIMES:

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

The total cost of maintaining the Prison for the year was $277,182 55, divided as follows: Male department, $251,062 57; female, department, $26,059 98. The total receipts were $254,159 08; from the male department, $244,009 12; female department, $4,052 96—leaving a deficiency of $23,000 47 to be provided for by the State. Last year the total expenditures were $327,459 92, and the receipts $180,929 94, leaving a deficiency to be provided for of $146,530 58. The cost to the State of the Prison for the past year is thus shown to be $97,531 11 less than for the preceding year.

The average cost of supporting each convict for rations only for the year was as follows: For males, 17 6-10 cents per day, or $5 43½ for the month; females, 27 3-10 cents per day, or $7 78 per month. Including all items per day: Male, 73 3-10 cents per day, or $22 82 per month; female, 54 cents per day, or $16 53 per month.

THE DEBIT ACCOUNT.

The items from which the foregoing statement is made are as follows:

In the male prison—Rations, $62,843; officers' salaries, $40,929 53; clothing and bedding, $21,736 21; miscellaneous, $20,592 61; oil and fuel, $14,124 38; building and repairs, $16,990 83; hospital, $3,243 12; discharged convicts, $1,947 74; grain and feed, $2,806 83; stationery, $1,976 20; furniture, $1,125 43; marble and lime works, $7,359 76; chair works, $15,139 06. Total, $251,062 57. In the female department, officers' salaries, $6,623 67; general support, $17,436 31. Total, $26,059 98.

THE CREDIT ACCOUNT.

The earnings of the Prison were as follows: contract earnings, $66,976 75; miscellaneous, $63,659 76; United States convict board, $4,912 40; military convict board, $1,229 17; convicts' deposits, $4,452 07; visitors' fund, $421 50; contributed funds, $30 62; Westchester marble and lime works, $139,014; Westchester chair works, $22,979 55; total, $244,009 12. The contract earnings are from the following sources: Shoes, $21,024 60; cabinet, $5,995 45; saddlery, hardware and harness, $22,112 50; and malleable iron, $9,839 40; total, $66,976 75. In the female prison the contract work were $4,052 96.

The printing, auger and chair contracts have been abandoned and the works stopped—the latter, which it was hoped would prove most productive, proving a failure, and the State being called upon to make up a deficiency of $27,000 to pay the debts incurred in carrying on the business.

FACTS ABOUT THE CONVICTS.

At the date of the report there were in prison a total of 1,970 convicts—1,850 males and 120 females. The number yesterday was 1,965—males, 1,116; females, 125. The escapes during the year were five, while in the previous year the number was fourteen, thus showing conclusively that the reported escapes of a large number of convicts was erroneous. Twenty-four of those imprisoned have died during the year, as against fourteen of the previous year; the greater number being from consumption and kidney and heart disease. Thirty-one have received pardons, while during the year previous thirty-seven were the subject of Executive clemency. The number of convicts received was 698; discharged, 525, and 100 transferred to Clinton. Of the number received 646 were white and 51 colored; 449 could read and write, 68 could read only, while 31 could do neither. Of this number 173 were temperate, 343 moderate, and 111 intemperate; 395 were natives of the United States, and of this number 157 were from this City, and 84 from other parts of the State. The remainder were from other States, the aggregate number being 94; Germany, 78; England, 18; France, 10; Canada, 6; Prussia, 4; Belgium, 4; Scotland, 3; Sweden, 2; West Indies, 3; Poland, 3; Holland, 1; Russia, 1; Spain, 1; Cuba 1 and Saxony 1. Total American, 395; foreigners, 255. The ages at the time of commitment were from 18 to 62. Of these 327 were between 17 and 20; one was 15, and three 16, and six were over 50. The terms of sentence ranged from one year to life; 324 were for less than five years, 115 for five years, 29 between five and ten years, 15 for ten years, 5 for twelve years, 1 for twelve years and six months, 1 for fifteen years, 2 for twenty years, and 4 for life.

The crimes of which these were convicted were: Assaults, 31; bigamy, 3; manslaughter, second degree, 2; manslaughter, third degree, 8; manslaughter, fourth degree, 7; murder, 13; rape, 3; sodomy, 1; attempt at burglary, 34; attempt at grand larceny, 49; burglary, 165; burglary and grand larceny, 7; false pretences, 3; petit larceny, second offence, 2; grand larceny, 161; forgery, 13; receiving stolen goods, 3; compounding a felony, 1; arson, 5; assault to rob, 15; robbery, first degree, 15; larceny from the person, 5; attempt at larceny from the person, 6; counterfeiting United States currency, 1; violating Revenue laws, 1.

The statistics of the year have been kept with great care by Mr. CHILDS, who is the Clerk of the Prison.

THE LIME KILNS.

The receipts from the lime works, will be seen are largely in excess of the expenditures, and this fact is used as an argument in favor of taking them out of the hands of a contractor and placing them under the control of the State. The receipts for the year would have been much greater, it is believed, had the kilns now in process of construction been completed and more men employed. The cost of a kiln is about $6,000, and when the works are finished it is designed to burn 1,500 barrels of lime a day. The profit on each barrel sold is one dollar, and the demand at the present time much greater than the supply. Two hundred and fifty men have been at work during the year, and the present year the force is to be doubled. Mr. A. WEST, formerly a stone contractor, an experienced man, is the superintendent of the works, and his confidence in their ability to support the institution is so great that he has offered to take the kilns and contract to carry on the prison entirely free of expense to the State. The profit is not only derived from the sale of the manufactured lime, but the flux is used for furnace purposes, and is now being transported in large quantities, thus furnishing an additional source of gain.

THE MARBLE QUARRIES.

The marble quarries are not valuable alone as furnishing the necessary material for lime manufacture, but the stone itself now taken out is of a superior quality, and as fine as that of which the Park Bank in New-York is constructed. The quarries are of vast extent, and the supply of stone almost inexhaustible. Owned by the State, as they are, they cannot fail if properly managed to become a source of large revenue. This City is now supplied mainly with lime from Rockland, Me., and with marble from other localities than Sing Sing. The time, it is believed, is not far distant when the State Prison will be able to furnish both articles in such quantities as to make the institution not only self-sustaining, but also a source of revenue to the State.

THE PRISON

is in excellent order, and a number of improvements have been made during the year. The office has been entirely rebuilt; heaters put in several of the new buildings instead of stoves; the cabinet shop, which was burned last year, replaced by another; new boilers and kettles put in the mess room, and many other necessary improvements effected. The appraised value of the property will, however, be about $10,000 less than that of last year, from the fact that until this time it has been rated at too high a figure. Mr. NELSON, upon assuming authority as Warden, being a resident of Sing Sing, and knowing the real value of the property, thought a reduction should be made in the appraisal, which was accordingly done.

PUNISHMENT OF CONVICTS.

Since the abolition of the shower bath by the Legislature of last Winter, the principal punishment has been the dark cell and tying up by the thumbs. The latter, it is said, has been found to be most effective. The authorities of the prison claim that a judicious use of the shower bath is a more potent means of preventing insubordination, the fear of infliction exerting almost as much influence as its actual experience. They regard it as a perfectly safe method of punishment. As it is now convicts will frequently hold out for several days instead of hours or minutes, as formerly.

GENERAL MATTERS.

The present Chaplain of the institution is Rev. E. S. SCHOONMAKER, of Schenectady, an earnest man who devotes his entire time to the prison and its spiritual needs. The Warden, Mr. HENRY C. NELSON, is a young man and deservedly popular. The whole appearance of the place, and particularly its cleanliness, is a strong evidence of good care. A report has recently been current that the schoolmaster employed by the State receives $1,500 per year, and works but two hours a week. This is pronounced to be false. He is employed two hours for five evenings in each week, and receives a compensation of only $600 per year.

MEETING OF STATE INSPECTORS.

The first meeting of the Board of State Inspectors of State Prisons, took place at Sing Sing yesterday. All three of the Inspectors were present, Mr. LAPLIN, the newly-elected member of the Board, taking his seat for the first time. Mr. SCHEU was chosen President for the current year and the assignments made as follows: Auburn, Inspector SCHEU; Clinton, Inspector LAPLIN; Sing Sing, Inspector SCHUTT.

A resolution complimentary to the retiring member of the Board, General JOHN HAMMOND, was unanimously adopted.

It is said to be the intention of the Inspectors to put all the prisons of the State on a paying basis, and to do this by either raising the price of the contracts, or by doing away with the system altogether. The Board leave Sing Sing this evening for the Clinton Prison for the purpose of attending the silver wedding of its warden, Hon. WM. C. BROCKS.

FIRE COMMISSIONERS.

Monthly Report of the Chief Engineer—Important General Order.

At the regular meeting of the Fire Commissioners, held yesterday, Chief Engineer PERLEY submitted his report for December, showing that during that time there were sixty-nine fires, all but two of which were confined to the buildings in which they originated. Only three buildings were considerably damaged, and thirty of the fires were extinguished without sending out an alarm. Of these fires, forty were discovered by citizens, twelve by the Fire Patrol, nine by the Police and eight by the bell ringers. The total loss from the fires of the month is estimated at $219,600.

A speculative real estate broker having asked permission to decorate the telegraph poles of the Department in Broadway with his lists of houses to rent, the Commissioners refused it, and passed a resolution asking the Board of Police to cause the arrest and punishment of all persons who shall post bills of any kind upon any of the poles.

The TIMES of yesterday announced the promotion of JOSEPH L. PERLEY to succeed Chief Engineer KIRKLAND in the executive command of the Department. The following is the official order, announcing that and other changes, chief among which is the institution of a new series of titles for the various officers. The order bears date the 31st ult., but is now first made public:

HEADQUARTERS METROPOLITAN FIRE DEPARTMENT, OFFICE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS, NEW-YORK, Dec. 31, 1869.

GENERAL ORDERS, NO. 51.—I. The resignation of the late Chief Engineer affords the opportunity of making certain changes in the organization of the Department which has grown with the City and the additional patrol and other duties assumed, and the necessity of personal and constant supervision over a force too large and scattered to be readily reached at any time from one central point, under expedient of the principal feature of the change being the promotion of three officers, commanding and responsible, under the Chief, for their respective districts in the place of one Assistant Engineer.

II. The following appointments and promotions are hereby made in conformity with the foregoing, to take effect on the first proximo: Joseph L. Perley, late Chief of the Department, and Robert V. Mackey is continued as Department Inspector, and in consequence of the other important duties imposed upon him, is relieved from fire duty. Wm. Brandon, to be Chief of the First Fire Brigade; Ezra Fairbanks, to be Chief of the Second Fire Brigade; Wm. W. Rhodes, to be Chief of the Third Fire Brigade; Ernest Drover, commanding Hook and Ladder Company No. 7, to be Foreman and Captain of Hook and Ladder Company No. 4, to be Assistant Foreman and Lieutenant.

III. The remaining District Engineers will hereafter be known as "Chiefs of Battalions," and will perform fire duty as heretofore described in Engineers in General Orders No. 24, series of 1868. Office of Chief Engineer.

IV. The "Chiefs of Brigades" upon receipt of this order will report in person to the "Chief of the Department," for orders and instructions.

By order of the Board.

ALEXANDER SHALER, President.
CHAS. B. GILDERSLEEVE, Secretary.

The Congressional Committee and the Gold Conspiracy.

There will be no session of the Committee on Banking and Currency of the House of Representatives until Tuesday next, when the Committee will be called together at Washington. No steps have been taken by any of the Committee towards investigating the gold conspiracy of September last, except inquiries by individual members, and no witnesses have been summoned or in any way notified that their attendance is desirable. When the Committee is called together it will be determined what course of investigation shall be conducted in Washington or in this City. This may be considered as semi-official, and those who have knowledge of the gold conspiracy may rest satisfied that they will not be disturbed for some days at least.

Genealogical and Biographical Society.

The New-York Genealogical and Biographical Society held its annual meeting at the Mott Memorial Hall, No. 64 Madison-avenue, last evening, HENRY B. STILES, M. D., the President, in the chair. The following gentlemen were elected Trustees of the Society for the year 1870: General George S. Greene, Charles B. Moore, S. S. Purple, M. D.; Ledyard Bill, Wm. F. Holcombe, M. D.; Henry M. Stiles, M. D.; E. Hasting Grant, David P. Holton, M. D., and S. Howard Stiles. These gentlemen are to meet and elect officers for the Society. The report of the Librarian, WM. F. HOLCOMBE, M. D., announced that since March, 1869, when the Society was organized, there had been donations of 369 bound volumes, 169 pamphlets, 1,000 or a number of genealogical charts, maps, autographs, &c. The Society will meet again on Saturday evening next.

Foreign Mails.

No alteration has been made in the arrangement published in Tuesday's TIMES, respecting the departure of foreign mails. Three, instead of four, mails will leave weekly for European countries for the present. In regard to the compensation which the Hamburg line will receive for carrying the French mails, nothing is yet known.

The Company expect that the French Government will allow them full freight rates at the least.

The English mails are carried at six cents per ounce.

While the expenses to the Government will be greater than heretofore by the reduction of foreign postage, the Postmaster-General is confident that in time the foreign mails will pay their way by the increase of letters sent.

Street Assault on a Lawyer by a Robber.

A young and well-known lawyer named EDWIN H. DARLING, is now lying in a critical condition at his residence in East Twenty-second-street, near Broadway, from the effects of wounds received on Monday evening at the hands of a man who made an attempt to rob him. The attack was in Twenty-second-street, two or three doors from his residence, as about 10 P. M., while he was on his way homeward from one of the theatres. His assailant approached him in a sudden manner, and struck him three blows on the head with some heavy weapon, which rendered him insensible. He was found lying on the sidewalk a short time after by a party of gentlemen. He had in his possession a valuable watch and a considerable amount of money, but neither was touched by the robber, for some unknown reason.

The Susquehanna Railroad Case.

Notice has been given of a motion at Albion, in the County of Orleans, for a week from next Monday, to set aside the recent judgment of Judge E. DARWIN SMITH. There are a large number of affidavits and papers on which the motion is to be made. The papers end with the following certificate:

We hereby certify that we have examined the opinion of Judge E. DARWIN SMITH in this cause, and that, in our judgment, it is, in every material point, erroneous either in fact or in law.

A Lawyer Poisoned Through a Drug Clerk's Error.

Another case of carelessness on the part of a drug clerk occurred on Monday last, in which Mr. ALFRED BUELL, a well-known lawyer of this City, was placed in a position nigh unto death. The latter stepped at an apothecary's store in Broadway, near the City Hall, for the purpose of having a prescription prepared. Instead of receiving the proper medicine, he was handed a potion which, after being taken by him, was discovered to be poison. He was subsequently removed to the Astor House and placed under the treatment of Dr. SWAIM, who administered antidotes which successfully counteracted the effects of the poison. Mr. BUELL is still lying at the hotel, however, it not being considered safe to remove him at present.

Funeral of Mrs. Dr. Lozier.

A large gathering of the sorrowing friends of the late Mrs. Dr. LOZIER assembled at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, in Thirty-fourth-street, yesterday afternoon, to pay their last and tributes of affection to their deceased friend. Mrs. LOZIER, by her genial, yet unassuming manner, her energy and perseverance, as well as by her thorough womanliness and large-hearted generosity, had won for herself the affection of all with whom she was brought in contact. Few of those who knew her but will treasure her memory as of a dear and valued friend. As the body was borne up the aisle the choir sang the anthem, "I heard a voice."

Rev. Dr. STREET read the Ninetieth Psalm and Rev. Dr. RIDGWAY made the first prayer. Rev. Mr. RUSSELL, of Brooklyn, then spoke of his acquaintance with the deceased in a most feeling manner, and Rev. OYRUS D. FOSS, pastor of the church, gave a sketch of Mrs. LOZIER's life and paid an eloquent tribute to her worth and goodness. The burial service was then read, after which the large congregation took their last look at the loved form, after which, accompanied only by the family friends, it was borne to Green-Wood Cemetery.

Labor Movements.

Three cigar shops are now on strike—the men at No. 15 Cedar-street, GRESHELL's shop, No. 86 Maiden-lane, and HEW's establishment in East Broadway. The men persist in holding out until the old scale of wages be restored.

The journeymen tailors are prosecuting Messrs. BROKAW BROTHERS for the false imprisonment of HAMES and FINNELL, members of the Union. The suit will come up on the 12th inst.

The stonemasons held their annual election of officers last night. The following is the result: Edward Kelly, President; Wm. Keenan, Vice-President; Wm. Kenny, Corresponding Secretary; Thomas Reilly, Recording Secretary; Cornelius McAuliffe, Treasurer; Wm. Dolan.

The Income Tax—Is It Payable for 1870?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Are the incomes of this year (1870) taxable? As I read the law, they are not; but is it not possible for some "Commissioner" to so torture the English language as to make them so? Indeed, I have heard some United States officials here say that there were grave doubts respecting the question. MANY READERS.

NEWARK, N. J., Monday, Jan. 3, 1870.

[The incomes which accrued in 1869 will be assessed and collected in March of this year. Those accruing this year (1870) are not taxable under the present law.—TIMES.]

Lead Poison.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

As the public seem greatly excited over the result of the investigation just instituted by Professor DOREMUS as to the cause of the death of Mr. GALLIE, the analysis of the contents of the stomach, intestines, liver, and also a portion of the muscular tissue, having divulged the presence of lead, and the learned Professor stating it may have been introduced through the medium of lead water pipes, and the question being raised by several of our best journals as to whether a safer material than lead could not be used for conveying water and other liquids, we beg to state that our Company have been making for several years, until they have reached the highest degree of perfection in producing a water pipe, the interior surface of which is pure block tin, equal to one quarter of the whole thickness of the pipe, the outer surface being of lead, the two metals being thoroughly united before being drawn into pipe. This is known as our LEAD-TEAMED BLOCK TIN PIPE. All the connections are all made with our new tin-lined joints. This causes the water to flow through an unbroken surface of pure block tin, no other metal, even of the minutest particle, coming in contact with the water. This pipe is as flexible and as easily worked as an ordinary lead pipe.

It is used solely at the Central Park, at all the public schools, several large hospitals and public buildings, and in over one thousand first-class dwellings.

This pipe is strongly recommended by the leading chemists and physicians, and also by the Water Commissioners of New-York, Brooklyn, Boston, and several other cities.

Many members of the Bar of the State have prepared a paper recommending JOSEPH P. BRADLEY, of Newark, for the position of Associate Justice of the United States.

The Vigilance Association of Bloomfield are active in the prevention of crime, and the place is in consequence unusually free from vagabonds and thieves. The adjoining town of Montclair, having been greatly troubled of late by burglars, is organizing a similar association.

At an early hour this morning a fire occurred in the window shade factory of Mr. JOSEPH BECK, corner of Woodruff-street and Second-avenue, which was entirely destroyed. Loss about $400; insured for $800 in the Newark City Company. The property of Mr. GEORGE CHRISTOPHER adjoining, was damaged to the amount of $100; insured in same Company. The fire was supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

Two boys, aged 10 and 12 years respectively, were brought before the Elizabeth Court on a charge of stealing their mothers' money, which they spent to witness a theatrical performance.

Mrs. ELIZABETH KERNS, a lady about 40 years of age, committed suicide on Tuesday night, at her residence in Henry-street, near Jefferson, in Hoboken, by taking a dose of Paris green. So says the verdict.

Proposed Subjugation of the Apache Indians in Arizona Territory.

Governor SAFFORD, of Arizona Territory, passed through this City yesterday on his way to Washington, whither he goes to ask for an increase of the military force in that part of the country, in view of the frightful deeds of the Apache Indians towards the whites. According to the Governor's account depredations are continually going on, and not a day passes without some one being captured and carried to the mountains by roving bands. If the captive is a man he is tortured for days together, and killed by slow degrees in order that his agony may be of the most intense nature. If a woman falls into the hands of the wretches a fate worse than death awaits her. Herds of cattle are stolen, baggage and mail wagons frequently plundered, and houses burned at frequent intervals. The warriors number about 5,000 and the non-combatants 20,000. They dwell in the mountains and live by plunder alone. To keep these in order there are only thirty-one companies, less than half full, of soldiers, numbering less than 1,600 men, and of these 700 completed their terms of service a few days since, leaving only 900 for service. The insufficiency of this force will further appear, the Governor claims, when it is considered that the Territory of Arizona is three times as large as that of New-York State. He expresses the belief that with a force of 5,000 cavalry and 1,000 infantry the Indians could be at once subdued, and at less expense than that incurred in the present defensive system of warfare. The country is exceedingly rich, he says, and if peace were established immigration could be easily resumed, and the resources of the Territory rapidly developed.

ANOTHER MURDER.

The Notorious Rowdy "James Logan No. 2" Fatally Wounded—Escape of the Murderer—Ante-Mortem Statement of the Victim.

About 9 o'clock yesterday morning JAMES LOGAN, a distinguished member of the "Nineteenth-street Gang," who was once under arrest on a suspicion that he murdered CHARLES ROGERS, on the 31st of December, 1868, was shot and fatally wounded by a man whom he formerly associated with. LOGAN entered the coffee and cake saloon known as "Harry and Johnny's," situated in the basement of No. 26 West Houston-street, under the "House of Commons," a third-class porter house, and quietly enjoyed some refreshments. At the same table with LOGAN sat CARRIE SMITH, who is understood to be his mistress, and at another table were seated JERRY DUNN, a notorious ruffian, and a number of his friends. LOGAN became incensed at the remarks and actions of DUNN and his gang in regard to CARRIE, as they finally insulted her. Angry words ensued, and the man adjourned to the street to settle the difficulty in their peculiar manner. They had scarcely reached the walk in front of the saloon when DUNN drew a Derringer pistol from his pocket, and discharged it at LOGAN, the bullet taking effect in his left breast, inflicting a fatal wound. Officer CRITTENDEN, of the Eighth Precinct, attracted by the report of the pistol, rushed to the spot and seized DUNN. The friends of the latter thereupon gathered about the officer, and by telling him the man who fired the pistol was in the saloon, induced the officer to release DUNN and enter the saloon in search of the assassin. DUNN thereupon made his escape.

LOGAN became insensible almost immediately after receiving the wound, and in that condition was removed to the Prince-street Police Station, where he subsequently fell into a lethargic sleep. He was then taken to Bellevue Hospital in an ambulance, where he remains in a dying condition.

The pistol used so deftly by DUNN was picked up in the street near the scene of the affray, and a slug shot was found in Mercer-street, where it had been dropped by DUNN in his endeavor to escape. The Police detained CARRIE SMITH and MINNIE WILSON and JOHN W. COOK as witnesses.

During the forenoon Coroner FLYNN held an ante-mortem examination in the case. The wounded man was found to be very weak, scarcely able to utter more than two or three words at a time. Dr. MCLEAN, House Surgeon of the hospital, stated that the bullet had entered the breast, between the fifth and sixth ribs, and is believed to have lodged in the lung. No probe had been used in consequence. In the Surgeon's opinion death was inevitable. The following is LOGAN'S statement:

"This morning, about nine o'clock, I went into GILLOTT'S (Thursday), No. 26 West Houston-street, to have something to eat; I sat down at the same table at which a young woman was already sitting; a man then came and entered the place the girl left, and I shortly after left without my dinner; I noticed also in the saloon while I was there three men, but am unable to say whether there were any others there or not while in the saloon or at any time afterward; I did not speak to any one words whatever with those men; after leaving the saloon I stood a little while in front of the door on the sidewalk and then returned back into the saloon again, and I intently looked at it; I then went out on the sidewalk a second time, and stood for a very short time close beside the steps leading into the "House of Commons;" in a few minutes after the three men I previously referred to, came out, the man who was first striking against me very roughly; I said nothing whatever, and without any provocation on my part another one of them turned suddenly round and pointing a pistol, which he held in his hand, directly at my breast, fired; I instantly lost all consciousness, and I know no more of what happened to me until I found myself lying in this hospital; I have never before with the young woman who sat at the same table with me, and did not even know her; neither did we have any words together; I did not threaten any person in the saloon or out of it, and did not have a drawn shot in my possession that evening or any other weapon."

No questions in relation to the Rogers murder were asked by the Coroner, and it would probably have been fruitless to do so, as the wounded man appeared to believe that he would survive his wound. The jury impanneled in the case omitted any verdict, in order that further investigation may be made by the Police.

As already stated, LOGAN has for several years borne an unenviable reputation, and escaped conviction for the Rogers murder through want of evidence of a direct character, though the circumstantial evidence produced before the Coroner was deemed so strong that a strong suspicion has been entertained ever since that he really did commit that most mysterious and remarkable murder. He resides at No. 295 East Twenty-ninth-street, and also at No. 19 West Houston, a panel house.

The alleged murderer, JERRY DUNN, is better known as "Hawkshaw," from the fact that he had been frequently arrested and convicted of having personated detectives for the purpose of gain, and blackmailing those unfortunate women so continually preyed upon by these ruffians. As DUNN is well known, he cannot long escape.

OUR STREETS.

The Report of the Street Cleaning Contractor—More Money Wanted.

A voluminous report from the Superintendent of the Street Cleaning Department for the past year was yesterday handed in to the Street Cleaning Commission by contractor JAMES L. BROWN.

The report commences by claiming that the work done last year is largely in excess of that of any previous year, this being due to the increase of population and to the insufficient number of regular dumping grounds. The manure, for which the contractor pays $30,000 per year, he sells at a loss of $10,000. The streets have been cleaned and the garbage and ashes removed, in accordance with the contract, "and in many cases much oftener than it requires." Of the difficulties with which he has to contend, it is remarked:

"It is undeniable that the streets in some sections are not as clean as is desirable, and I will endeavor to point out the true cause and suggest the necessary remedies. The contract under which we work, no matter how scrupulously complied with, must always fail to secure the desired result—it is totally inadequate in its provisions and requirements as will as in its considerations to the contractor, sanitary considerations—and they are of paramount importance in all street cleaning—would require the dirtier parts of the City to be cleaned the most and the cleanest parts the less frequently. This necessary requirement has been reversed. The streets which are required to be swept twice and oftener in a week, need this extra attention much less than a large portion of those which are only required by the contract to be cleaned once. In respects of health, decency and decent avenues and thoroughfares, it would not be unreasonable so much filth and offensive refuse in a week as some of the streets in the thickly-settled tenement wards do in a day. Not that I deem the streets just mentioned cleaned oftener than they should be, but the letter clause requires this frequent cleaning much more than they do, and if any discrimination had to be made sanitary reasons would require that it should have been in favor of the latter. But in all street cleaning other considerations demand attention besides sanitary—the tastes and habits of some portions of our population are so elevated to a higher grade than are those of other portions, and the same standard of cleanliness which would be satisfactory to the inhabitants in some wards, would not be tolerated by the inhabitants of other and more respectable portions of the City. No doubt it was from this deference to the demands or wishes of the wealthier and influential sections that these discriminations in their favor were made. An important consideration which demands attention, but which appears to have been ignored in the present contract, is the necessity existing in the lower parts of the City for a more frequent cleaning on account of the enormous daily concentration of business and traffic of all kinds. In the section below Canal-street, causes and conditions exist for producing dirty streets in a more pronounced degree over that of the section above. In this lower part nearly the whole business of the City is concentrated daily; fully three-fourths the number of all the horses and vehicles on the island visit some portion of it every day. In Broadway alone, in the vicinity of Vesey-street, more than 20,000 horses with vehicles pass and repass daily; besides this in every store, basement and upper floor some dirt-creating business is carried on, all going to swell the immense amount produced daily, yet this part is required by the contract to be cleaned no oftener than the upper section, where not more than half the amount of dirt is produced in an equal area. Most of the complaints we receive of dirty streets are from this lower section and from the tenement parts. A prolific cause of dirty streets in other sections is the constant practice among the poorer classes of tenement population of throwing ashes, garbage and every kind of filth into the street instead of putting it in some suitable vessel and bringing it out on the approach of the ash cart, or leaving it on the sidewalk to be taken away daily. The consequence is that such streets are almost constantly in a dirty condition, because of filth and offensive matter accumulate between our weekly cleanings, obstructing the gutters and preventing the flow of water, causing it in the Summer season to stagnate and become offensive, and as the Health Inspector would say, "dangerous to life and destructive to health." Most of these streets referred to are required to be cleaned by us but once a week, and the moment we have finished them the accumulating process recommences, so that it is impossible to give them a cleanly appearance for two days together. Many of the streets referred to require to be cleaned two and three times a week during the Summer, for which we receive no extra pay and very little credit. One of the most natural of the causes in that during the Winter season the mud becomes frozen in the street it is
